Commission on Aging Wants Its '82 Money To Be Given to Squad

Princeton's Joint Commission on Aging has voted to make the supreme sacrifice: don't provide any money for us in the 1982 budget, the Commission is asking Borough and Township governments; instead, use the money for the First Aid and Rescue Squad

In a letter to Borough officials, the Commission urges the Borough to reject a fee-for-service proposal, and fund the Squad wholly, providing money to continue the day crew at its present level of staffing.

The Commission also suggests a survey of voters, "as to whether a superior Squad is more important than fiscal economies." The survey might also be directed at Squad volunteers, the Commission suggests, asking how they would feel if the Squad were to charge a fee for its services.

"We are apprehensive that a pay-as-you-go concept could have disastrous consequences," the letter says "First of all, it would most probably be a financial failure.

"With almost a completely volunteer staff, 11,000 people last year received first-class help for about $100 each in cost to the Squad No quasi-commercial outfit could supply anywhere near such quality aid for more than double that cost."

Commenting on the needs of its elderly constituents, the Commission says that the "Vial of Life" program is linked to a professional Squad staff. (In this program, a vial with important medical information is kept in the refrigerator in the homes of elderly or chronically ill people.)

"If only a stretcher-bearer is available with no trained specialist able to use such information on the spot, the Vial program would lose its major purpose," the Commission letter states.

"Even assuming that most rescue victims could pay their way or even part of the cost, the Borough would find itself paying for the many poor and indigent ... at an inflated price for inferior ... rvices."

The letter also suggests that it would be hard to recruit volunteers for "a commercial outfit." The letter was signed by the Commission's chairman, Martin P Lombardo

'GEORGE' IS THE NAME: And not George III, either. General Washington himself (Lee Reed) is escorted by Col. Thomas Moran. The Rochambeau parade, in Monday's cold, brilliant afternoon sunshine, drew 200 members of the Lauzun Legion down Nassau Street. Hungarian Hussars were the horse, and Joshua Huddy's corps played fife and drum. Before the parade, the 96 men of a top French military band gave a lilting concert in front of Borough Hall. Every musician in this French-speaking band (Major Chopin was the leader) found a billet in a French-speaking home, thanks to Caroline Lareuse of Princeton's Rochambeau committee. Fatigued by the parade, Legion and band dined on good American stew prepared by Princeton's American Legion Auxiliary and served on the patio at "Morven." (Micaela McMillan photo)

Collins Returning to Planning Board To Hear Review of Its Traffic Study

Collins Development, which hasn't been in public view since the Planning Board gave overall approval to the firm's plans for an expanded Palmer Square, is coming back on stage.

Next Tuesday, the Planning Board will sit down in special session to hear what Garman Associates found in Collins' traffic studies. The Garman firm was hired by the board to review the P.C. Voorhees traffic studies that had been made for Collins

At the same meeting, the board will see Collins' revised site plan for the expanded Square. Revisions were made in line with the board's own stipulations at the time of approval last summer. The meeting will be at 7:30 in the Valley Road Building.

According to Borough Mayor Robert W Cawley, the Garman report approves the general conformations of the Voorhees study, with what the mayor called "some suggested changes that are outside Collins' plans."

Collins would like to be the applicant, when plans for the Chambers Street garage go before the Environmental Design Review Committee, and Borough Council agreed at Monday's work session.

Meanwhile, negotiations will continue on how the Chambers garage is to be financed

The question at present is whether the Borough will build the garage, or Collins. If Collins is successful in obtaining financing for the garage from New Jersey's Economic Development Agency, Mayor Cawley observed, the Borough would be out of the act altogether The Borough and a private owner own the land where the garage will be built.

Special Hospital Zone About to Be Created For Medical Center

After months of study, a special Hospital Zone for the Medical Center at Princeton is about to come into being. It will be one zone—the same in both Borough and Township—and as things look now, the implementing ordinance will probably be the same in both municipalities.

A key feature in the new ordinance is the Medical Center's agreement to hold the height of the "J" building to seven stories. The building, tallest in the complex, is now five.

The Center received permission from a long-ago Borough government to build an eventual ten-story "J" building.

"We wanted to reverse that," Council member Richard Macgill told his colleagues Monday night, "but they already have the approval.

"They have agreed, however, to hold the height to seven stories. They want to be able to raze the original building and replace it. To do that, they must put patients somewhere during construction, and they propose two more stories on the 'J' building for that purpose."

In reply to a question from Council, Mr. Macgill said yes, the Center would leave the two new stories there, after completion of whatever new structure might be built.

"The hospital holds the cards—they have a right to the ten stories," Mr. Macgill reminded Council, "but they want some things, and we hold cards, too."

Mr. Macgill said that, if the "J" building is indeed to be seven stories, then the maximum allowed in other buildings would be five, under the new ordinance.

On Harris Road, the Center would like "residential-type" buildings no more than 100 feet long, with ten feet between. The hospital would like them connected by a ten-foot corridor, which Mr. Macgill told Council he thinks is a reasonable request; however, Township representatives have demurred The matter is still undecided, he said.

Also undecided is the hospital's argument that it shouldn't be required to build as many loading docks as the ordinance proposes. Such docks take up precious land space. Center representatives say the hospital needs only one central receiving depot, Mr. Macgill reported

EVERGREENS: Part 2
with Sam De Turo
Woodwinds Associates

As we were saying! Evergreens have been hit very hard by the environmental stresses of the past few seasons.. as discussed last week, the various factors of insects, diseases and drought have certainly done their worst. In the case of broadleafed evergreens, drought and severe cold have been the main factors responsible for the decline and, in too many cases, the loss of such plants as Rhododendron, Andromeda, Azalea Ilex, Holly, etc.

Here's what happens: Frozen ground inhibits the intake of water through roots. At the same time, icy winds accelerate the process of transpiration (the passage of water out of the leaves in the form of watery vapor) through leaves and stems, resulting in a wilting condition known as "winter kill." The best defense against this condition is the application of a Winter-Proofing material which is sprayed on evergreen leaves and stems; this material forms a colorless, wax-like film which stops water loss through transpiraton, but does not cut off oxygen and sunshine. Therefore, there is no inhibition of plant growth.

Ideally, plantings of broadleafed evergreens should be sprayed with Winter-Proofing material once in early winter, and again during a thaw period in late winter. Years of testing and experience have shown this type of winter protection will serve as well or better than "shrouding" plants in burlap...certainly with far less effort and without marring the beauty of the winter landscape!

You might consider tying up some of your larger evergreens to prevent accumulations of ice and snow from bending heavy branches out of shape, or even breaking such limbs unable to support the extra weight. Loosely tie heavy twine around the plants, starting from the bottom, and making the loops about 6-12" apart.

DON'T FORGET TO MULCH AND WATER!! Mulches will reduce the amount of ground-temperature fluctuations around the roots of your plants, and watering - properly - between now and the first hard freeze will be extremely helpful, as well.

Hospital Zone

The new Hospital Zone would consist of a single block of land. The ordinance will state what the hospital can do within that block.

In the Master Plan, the Planning Board said it wanted an area devoted to the hospital, where the institution could develop its own hospital facilities.

"The ordinance attempts that," says Borough engineer George Olexa, "while protecting the residential neighborhoods, restricting setbacks and height and requiring that buildings be similar to residential buildings."

A sub-committee consisting of representatives from both governing bodies and the Center, with Mr. Olexa and Borough attorney Edwin Schmierer, has been working on the zone. Although Borough Council had hoped to introduce the Borough's ordinance this Tuesday, that introduction had to be postponed. The Township would like the proposals reviewed by the Planning Board and that has not yet taken place. A committee of the board is scheduled to discuss the ordinance this Thursday at 4.

A WALK ON BAYARD

Ordinance Introduced. A sidewalk, relaxed rules for converting rooms to apartments, money to pay a consultant, a new speed limit were on a long list of ordinances ready for introduction this Tuesday by Borough Council. Public hearings will be in November.

A 200-foot walkway on Bayard Lane, cost still to be determined, is the subject of one ordinance. The walk will extend from Westcott Road north to Birch on the west side of Bayard Lane across from the "Stanworth" apartments.

The Borough will pay the entire cost, assuming 65 percent of the charge, and assessing the rest to the six Borough property owners along the way. The one property in the Township will not be assessed. The Township declined to join in paying for the walk.

"Secondary residences" are the apartments people make by remodeling their homes. In the Township, these are called "flats." The Borough's new ordinance extends permission for such remodeling to all residential zones in the municipality, and also liberalizes the requirements.

Under the new ordinance, if you want to create an apartment in your house, you must have a lot which is one and one-quarter times the size of the minimum lot in your zone. Under the present ordinance, you need a lot one and one-half times as large. In addition, minimum lot sizes for a single-family house have been reduced.

These are the new minimum lot sizes: R-1 zone, 20,000 square feet; R-2, 10,000; R-3, 7,200 and R-4, 6,000.

This means, for example, that if you live in the R-4 zone where the minimum lot size for a single-family house is 6,000 square feet, you must have a lot which is 7,500 square feet if you want to remodel and make an apartment.

Council is also moving ahead with plans for the Dinky area by appropriating $25,000 for the services of its consultant, J. Robert Hillier. The Borough and Princeton University will pay part of that, the proportion still undecided.

Too many people have been winging around parking lots, reported Police Chief Michael Carnevale. Council will now impose a speed limit of ten m.p.h. in all lots.

Bearse Back on Trail

Peter Bearse, Democratic candidate for Borough Council, is hiking the campaign trail again after an automobile accident sent him to the hospital for five days.

"I want people to know I'm alive and well and still running," Mr. Bearse said. "I am very lucky."

He sustained extensive facial injuries, including a multiple nose break, severe cuts and injury to his teeth. His face was the only part of his body damaged.

The accident occurred October 3. The candidate was released from the hospital last Wednesday.

Lombardo Softens Statement on Public Officials

"I don't believe public officials were involved in any wrong-doing, and I don't believe there was any collusion or influence," stated Martin P. Lombardo this week. Mr. Lombardo is co-chairman of the Township - Borough Tax Revolt Committee.

Although in a prepared statement last week he wrote that: "New charges have been levelled at public officials in Borough and Township," he explained that his committee simply wanted to highlight what he regards as the mistakes made by the P.R.C. Jacobs revaluation firm

---

"We're not saying that an official received preferential treatment because his house was given a lower assessment. Our goal was to show that Jacobs had done a bad job."

He added that he believed representatives of the Jacobs firm knew where public officials lived. "We felt that because of the unfairness, there had to have been preferential treatment," he continued.

The Tax Revolt Committee singled out four officials — three Borough and one Township — whose houses, the Committee said, had been given revaluations significantly lower than others in the neighborhood.

Mr. Lombardo also charged this week that assessor Stuart Robson "is misrepresenting the facts at tax appeal hearings." He said that his parents' Nassau Street house was assessed at $82,500. At the appeal hearing, he said, Mr. Robson told the county board that the adjoining house was on the market for $160,000.

"Rights Not Told." He charged that it was "misrepresentation" to use an asking price as comparison, instead of the actual sale price. In fact, he added, the adjoining house has been withdrawn from the market.

He also said that residents "aren't being told their rights.

"After a re-inspection," he said, "you get a call from the Borough attorney who offers you a certain dollar amount and asks you to sign a paper, but you're not told you have the right to appeal to the state."

Mr. Robson explains that, under state law, any offer to a property-owner must be made by the municipal attorney. Property-owners who do not want to accept the new offer, can appeal to the county tax board, and then to the New Jersey State Tax Court.

Mayor Lists Reasons for 'Yes' Vote on Garage

"'Balance' was our objective, in planning for the downtown, and 'compromise' was the way we got there," declared Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley this week, setting out the reasons why he hopes Borough voters will say "yes" to the garage referendum.

He told reporters that the cost of the garage will be offset by tax revenue from Collins' plans for an expanded Palmer Square. Anticipated revenue for the Borough alone, he said, is $180,000 a year from that new $40 million rateable. ("The Collins people say it's $50 million," the mayor remarked.)

Total tax revenue from the expanded Square will be $900,000 most of which will go to the county and the schools. The mayor said Council member Charles Cornforth estimates that 40 percent of that $900,000 will actually benefit the Borough, when the Borough's stake in the schools is considered with the $180,000.

"All studies of this area have always aimed at balance," the mayor continued. He traced planning from 1967 to the Steering Committee of three years ago, referring to a desire for "balance" among retail, office, residential, cultural and entertainment factors, with open space, parking and circulation plans for pedestrians and cars.

The Steering Committee consisted of people who live near Palmer Square and the library on all sides. Members spent several months in detailed studies of what should be done with Palmer Square area.

"Nobody on the Steering Committee pushed for a reduced level of development," the mayor remarked. "In our work on that Committee, we pushed PCH's apartments for the elderly back and forth on different locations many times, and by a split vote, the Steering Committee decided on the present site."

The mayor said it was "really a boon to get a project like PCH that doesn't generate traffic pressure, in such a location. It's true — to replace PCH parking, you need a garage, and that very garage was part of the Steering Committee's decision.

"From the planning point of view, this has always been contemplated, and should continue.

"I feel strongly," Mayor Cawley said, "that the location for PCH is appropriate from the point of view of the people who will be living there. For example, many tenants could have walked to the Rochambeau events, and last week's Art People party was right in their front yard.

"Once it's done and a little time has gone by, it will be perceived in its entirety," the mayor commented. "There must have been opponents of Edgar Palmer when he built the Square — you don't hear that today. Nobody today protests the Lloyd Terrace apartments or the Clay Street houses.

"I'm very upbeat; I'm bullish on the downtown, on PCH and the garage."

FIVE ARE CHARGED

With Possession of Stolen Property. Five young men from outside the Princeton area have been charged with possession of stolen property.

Borough police said that the five — Timothy Lynch, 19, of Richboro, Pa.; Jeffrey Pomeroy, 23, of Rockville, Md.; Gregory Mooney, 20, of Pearl River, N.Y.; Steve Bunke, 22, Reading, Pa.; and Eugene Boechele, 19, of Somerdale, N.J. — fled in a dark-colored truck, after they were seen attempting to remove an iced tea machine early Sunday morning from the Elm Club on Prospect Avenue. They dropped the machine before fleeing.

A club member called police at 3:07 and provided a description of the truck. It was seen shortly after by Sgt. Peter Hanley and Ptl. Michael Taylor, who stopped it at the intersection of Nassau and Mercer Streets.

The five suspects were identified by a witness, and police said that they found a portion of the machine they had tried to steal in the truck. All were later released after being issued summonses calling for their appearance here in court November 18.

Drug Charge. Mitchell Rucko, 23, of North Wales, Pa., has been charged by Township police with possession of more than 25 grams of marijuana with intent to distribute. Released on $1,000 bail set by Judge Sydney Souter, Rucko is scheduled to appear in court on Tuesday.

Rucko was observed by University proctors acting in a suspicious manner Friday night outside the second entry to Lourie Love Hall. He was apprehended, detained until Township police arrived, and transported to headquarters. Rucko allegedly had about a half-pound of jarijuana in his possession at the time of his arrest.

Juvenile Is Charged. A 17-year-old Princeton juvenile has been charged with theft and being under the influence of alcohol, after he was arrested for allegedly trying to steal a white blazer from a second-floor room at the Tower Club on Prospect Avenue.

Later released to his parents, the youth was caught by students of the club and held until police arrived. They were called by the club at 12:29 Saturday morning.

EMPLOYEE IS ROBBED

In Beauty Salon. An employee of a Nassau Street beauty salon was robbed of $148 early last week by a man who threatened to cut her throat, police said, if she didn't give him some money.

The employee, a resident of Yardville, told police that she was alone in the shop around 4:45 when she heard the front door open. She was confronted by a six-foot black male, wearing black leather gloves, dark glasses, dungarees and a long-sleeved maroon sweatshirt. Although she said that she never saw a knife, the intruder demanded money, threatening to cut her throat if she did not comply. Police said that the victim gave him $148 from her pocketbook.

The intruder, police said, then pushed the employee into a wooden partition, causing a small cut over her right temple, and told her to remain in the shop for ten minutes after he left. Det. Thomas Michaud and Ptl. William Clark investigated the incident.

Student Assaulted. A visiting 19-year-old student from Dennisport, Mass., was assaulted last week by two muscular men in their early 20s on lower University Place.

The victim told police and university security members that he was walking from the Wawa Market and had almost reached the railway station when a white, six-foot, muscular youth jumped from the left side and struck him in the face, knocking him down.

Another white youth, also muscular and about six feet tall, he continued, then began beating him, causing him to lose consciousness for two hours. Lt. John J. Bellow said that the victim was not robbed and that no words were exchanged during the attack. Both assailants were wearing tan jackets and had short, dark hair, he said.

Attempted Mugging. A Princeton resident called police last week to report that he was the victim of an attempted mugging.

He told them he was confronted by a well dressed male of student age, as he was about to enter his parked car in the PMI lot off Hulfish Street. The victim said that he was pushed into the car, but managed to break loose and chased his attacker across the lot toward the Princeton Bank and Trust drive-in branch.

The suspect was further described as white, clean cut with short hair, wearing a pullover crew neck shirt. Again, no words were exchanged, police said.

Ode to October

Apple, tart
Upon the lip,
Cider, in a
Winy sip
Air so "sec",
Sky so blue—
Hey, October!
I love you!

When it's in the thirties with freezing rain or sleet in February think back to these beautiful fall days and remember that New Jersey does indeed have nice weather occasionally.

This pleasant string of sunny dry and cool weather is expected to continue at least until Friday with a gradual warming trend pushing the temperatures up into the low 70s by the end of the week. The outlook for the weekend is uncertain but no one will complain if the string continues a little longer.

TOASTER IS BLAMED

For Birch Avenue Fire. A short in a toaster is being blamed for a small fire last week in the kitchen of a Birch Avenue home.

The first floor was filled with smoke when Ptl. James Vandermark arrived shortly before 10 in the morning. There were small flames on a kitchen wall. Paint, glass and curtains were damaged by the flames, as well as the toaster and a coffeemaker.

Criminal Mischief. Township police are investigating an act of criminal mischief last week at the vacant Johnson Park school building.

Someone, police report, climbed to the roof of the north wing, broke a skylight with a large rock, scooped up loose gravel from the roof and hurled it over the lavatory floor below. Two 18 by 36-inch windows on the south end of the building were also broken.

DRIVER IS FINED $225

For Drunken Driving. In Borough traffic court Monday, Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. fined Pietro D. Mogare, 15 Charlton Street, $225 and revoked his license for 60 days for drunken driving.

Fined for speeding were Manfred F. Boemeke, 633 Mt. Lucas Road, $20; Robin B. Kuster of Kingston, $21; Edythe S. Dee, Surrey Drive, Belle Mead, $22; Robert P. Rich Jr., Skillman Road, Skillman, $21, and Yu Kwang Chen, Old Graduate College, Princeton, $20. Lisa D. Crites, 52 Shady Brook Lane, and Andrew J. Mendenko, 52 Model Avenue, Hopewell, paid $25 and $35 for careless driving.

Others: Virginia Lennon, 19 Pardoe Road, $15, overdue inspection; Charles A. Bregenzer, 36 Princeton Avenue, Hopewell, $20, no name and address on commercial vehicle; and Jean J. Skupinski, 409 Walnut Lane, $35, stop sign.

In Borough criminal court last week, Geoffrey Peters, 76 Battle Road, was fined $60 and placed on probation for six months for harrassment. Found guilty of assault, John Tadlock, 184 Witherspoon Street, was fined $35 and ordered to pay $25 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. He was also placed on probation for six months by Judge Annich.

THEFT REPORT

Blazer, Purse Stolen. The theft of a $100 suede blazer and of a leather purse were among campus thefts reported last week by police.

The blazer was taken between 1 and 2:30 Sunday morning from a women's room in Dial Lodge, while the purse was stolen between 11:30 and 12:30 Sunday morning from the Cottage Club. The latter victim is a university student. Police, who say they do not know how much money was inside, report the purse was valued at $18.

In another club theft on Prospect Avenue, a pair of stereo speakers valued at $295 were stolen last week from the basement of the Campus Club. There was no forced entry.

Three IBM typewriter elements, worth $25 each, were stolen between 3 and 3:15 in the afternoon from a locked room in Jones Hall on the university campus.

Three car batteries were stolen last week, one in the Borough, two in the Township.

The first theft took place in the Witherspoon lot where a Township resident was the victim. The battery was taken during a 25-minute period in the morning. Township police report two batteries taken from cars parked near the railwny station on University Place. One is valued at $70. Both victims are Princeton residents.

Ten cases of assorted soda valued at $55 were stolen between 10 Saturday night and 2:30 Monday afternoon — when it was discovered — from a locked refreshment stand at the north end of Palmer Stadium. The door to the stand had been kicked in, police said.

An unlocked, 10-speed bicycle was taken during the night from the hallway of a Pine Street apartment — it is valued at $191 — and a student's daypack was removed from his bicycle, which he had left unattended for an hour last week in a lot behind Charlton Street. Inside were books valued at $38 and a calculator. Total loss: $75.

FOR TOWNSHIP...

Tax Appeal Hearings. Henrings will begin this week for the 400 or so Township residents who filed an nppeal with Mercer County from the assessment assigned to them under the new revaluation. Retired nssessor Stuart Robson Sr., who is working with his son, Stunrt Robson Jr., appointed to the nssessor's post earlier this year, says the county hopes to hear 86 cases a day.

This Monday, the assessor's office begnn to re-inspect Township properties involved in the appeals. If errors are found, Mr. Robson explained, the property-owner's card will be calculated again and corrected. The change will be reported to the Township attorney, who will call the home-owner and ask if a settlement is satisfactory. Mr. Robson explained that this offer, by law, can come only from the municipal attorney.

He reported that in the Borough, about 40 of the 200 who appealed, were "no shows." These cases, he said, were simply dismissed. He added, in comment on the appeals, that many Borough property-owners owned several pieces.

The former assessor reported that sales in Borough and Township are running about ten to 15 percent above new assessments.

THE FATIGUE OF A SMALL PATRIOT: The patriotic solemnity of wreath-laying—that's Col. Thomas Moran with the wreath—is lost on a small Colonial whose mother marched as one of the followers. The logistics of moving an army, its horse (we in the military never say "horses"), its French band's airborne luggage that had to be diplomatically removed from J.F.K. airport because French embassy officials misunderstood the arrival day—all this was arranged by a Princeton committee headed by Tristam B. Johnson. Rochambeau's army, followers and band, is moving way south to re-fight the Battle of Yorktown.

TO PROPOSE ORDINANCE For High-Density Development. Township Committee will introduce the high-density residential development ordinance at its regular meeting this Wednesday at 8 in the Valley Road building meeting room.

Mayor Josie Hall pointed out during the work session discussion of the ordinance last Wednesday that the ordinance is step two of three ordinances designed to provide a mix of housing types and to meet the objectives of the Mount Laurel decision for low- and middle-cost housing. The first step was the cluster ordinance enacted during the early part of the summer, and the third step will be the conditional high density ordinance yet to come.

The ordinance about to be introduced would provide for small, modestly priced houses on small lots and multi-family construction. It will offer density bonuses to developers who would build a certain percentage of the units to sell at the median sale price for new houses in the northeast region. The purpose is to try to get modest two- and three-bedroom housing units that have fewer amenities.

Committee will probably introduce the ordinance "on first reading" without public comment this Wednesday and schedule the public hearing for Wednesday, November 4, when the ordinance would be up for formal adoption.

Shoveling Their Own Snow. Township residents may have to shovel their own sidewalks this winter. In taking what Township Administrator Joseph R. Nini calls a hard look at the municipal budget because of the cap restrictions, Committee is considering eliminating the removal of snow from sidewalks and bikepaths throughout the Township.

The suggestion was first made last year, but too late to do anything about it, Mr. Nini says, and was deferred until this year.

This proposal is on this Wednesday's work session agenda, along with discussion of proposals concerning the International Year of the Disabled, a proposed food co-op for the elderly and disabled, and ways of funding the First Aid and Rescue Squad daytime paramedics.

Committee is also scheduled to discuss personnel matters and tax appeals in a closed session.

CART CAPER SOLVED By Borough Police. Someone was driving a golf cart over the front lawns on Prospect Avenue during the weekend.

Police received a call Saturday morning from a resident reporting that a golf cart had been driven through through his boxwood hedge. The next morning another resident complained that more than $200 in damages had been done to the front lawn and a forsythia bush by an unknown vehicle.

After police found a plastic box in a driveway that had apparently been dislodged from the cart, they ascertained that it came from a type of cart issued by the university to injured students for travel on campus.

Ptl. Glenn Stanton continued his sleuthing and located the suspect cart — complete with a piece of boxwood under it. He charged the owner with driving an unregistered vehicle.

The student-owner, who has a cast on his leg, admitted to police that he had driven the cart off campus to a club on Prospect Avenue where he went to a party. He told them he had chained the steering mechanism.

Someone, he continued, took the cart, and because of some play in the chain, was able to drive the cart but not steer it properly. Police reported that the owner feels responsible for the damage to the lawns and is making restitution.

The driver who caused all the damage has not been located.

PHS SPORTS TO GAIN

From Paper Drive. A fall paper drive sponsored by the Friends of Princeton High Athletics (FOPHA) will be held Sunday from 10 to 3. The van is located behind the Valley Road Administration Building with entry from valley Road.

The van has been in place and available for recycling newspapers daily since last spring. This effort has enabled FOPHA to donate $1600 for carpeting in the weight room at the High School. A major addition to the Universal Gym equipment in this room will be delivered soon.

Mary Chamberlin and Janet Falcone are coordinating this drive for the Friends, and members of the boys and girls soccer teams will help with the unloading. All papers should be tied with string or bagged. If it is impossible to come that day, call Bill Karch at 924-5600, Ext. 222.

FOPHA is an association of parents and friends of Princeton High School who have a special interest in athletics as an integral part of the learning and educational experience. It exists to provide support to Princeton High athletic teams, coaches and related activities. It seeks to generate campus pride, community enthusiasm and public recognition for the students, coaches, programs and accomplishments of PHS athletic teams.

School parents and friends who wish to join may send $5 dues payable to FOPHA to Jon Varvel, 42 Sturges Way.

OPEN HOUSE PLANNED

At Stuart School. A special upper school open house will be held at Stuart Country Day School on Thursday, October 22, at 7:30 for prospective students for grades 9 through 12. Girls seeking admission to grade 9 in the fall of 1982 may register for a scholarship and entrance examination to be given on Saturday, October 31, at Stuart.

The open house will begin with informal tours of the school given by current studenta. There will be a short presentation of the curriculum, extracurricular activities and special programs. Faculty members will be on hand to answer questions, and refreshments will be served.

Current eighth grade girls who register for the merit scholarship for fall 1982 may use the examination to qualify for admission to Stuart without further testing. However, an application, a personal interview, and a review of the candidate's academic record are required for formal acceptance.

Three scholarships will be awarded. The first, second and third place scholarship prizes of $1500, $1000 and $800, applicable only to ninth grade tuition to Stuart in 1982, will be awarded to the highest scorers, and the winners will be designated Stuart Scholars.

For more information call Mrs. Lynn Gordam, director of admissions, 921-2330.

Why?

Does Toto's Market have a 24 oz. bottle of vinegar on their shelf selling for $12.39?

Because...

We had a special request to obtain an aged sherry wine vinegar

So...

We went and searched for a purveyor and finally found one to import for us from Spain a sherry wine vinegar aged in excess of 25 years.

The vinegar is made naturally from finest selected wine from the sherry-producing zone in Spain and aged by the traditional solera system. Total annual production of this very old vinegar is only 47,600 bottles. Each one is numbered.

HOW TO VOTE FOR LEADERSHIP IN PRINCETON TOWNSHIP

GAIL FIRESTONE

DICK SCHOCH

These two fine people were chosen as your candidates for Township Committee because both have a long and distinguished record of service to our community, both have proved to be effective leaders.

Effective leadership. That's exactly what the Township will need in the tough years to come. Experienced leaders who can deal fairly with these three problem areas:

1. Keeping local taxes down. The bulk of your tax dollars goes to our school system and to Mercer County. The Township receives only 14%. These funds must be used very efficiently to keep this portion in check. That calls for effective leadership.

2. Providing essential services. Princeton wouldn't be much of a town without playgrounds or police or decent roads or a First Aid & Rescue Squad. Township Committee is responsible for much of what makes this a good place to live. Its members should be effective leaders.

3. Using our lands well. Princeton's special character -- the reasons we all live here, the reasons others choose to move here – isn't a curious act of Nature. It's in large measure the result of good governmental planning. Keeping the town growing in a balanced, orderly way is not an easy task. It demands effective leadership.

before he was able to reach the opposite side.

Isidoridis Ioakim, knocked to the roadway, was taken by the First Aid Squad ambulance to Princeton Medical Center where he was treated for one, possibly two, fractures of the right knee, a hroken right shoulder and a laceration on the back of his hand.

Ptl. William Clark charged the driver, Fritzi B. Good, 65, of Somerset with failure to yield to a pedestrian. Mrs. Good told Clark that she thought the victim was standing still and that is why she went ahead and accelerated. One of three witnesses told the officer it appeared that the Good car was in a hurry.

Car Overturns. A 1978 foreign car rode up the support wire of a telephone pole and overturned as it was attempting to turn onto University Place from Nassau Street last week.

The driver, Kethleen Kelly, 20, of Trenton, refused treatment for a laceration of the left hand. Her passenger, Robert S. Camp, 21, 2207 Deer Creek Road, Plainsboro, was bandaged at the scene by members of the First Aid Squad for lacerations of the left shoulder, right wrist and left elbow. He refused further aid.

Miss Kelly was charged with driving while under the influence, careless driving and no license or registration in possession by Ptl. Michael Taylor.

Her car, after swinging wide, went off the roadway, uprooted a small tree, and climbed up a utility pole support wire before overturning, smashing the windshield, collapsing the roof and damaging the entire right side. Police said the car was a total loss.

Pressure on the support wire, police report, caused the pole to break half way up. Miss Kelly was taken to police headquarters where she was administered breath and psycho-motor tests.

Two Cars Totalled. In the Township early last week, two cars, a 1971 sports car and a 1970 sedan, were judged total losses, after they collided during a turning accident at Route 206 and Cherry Hill Road. Both drivers were injured.

Bradford A. Davis, 21, 29 W. Church Street, Lawrenceville, was charged with failure to yield at an intersection by Ptl. John Petrone Jr. He was treated at Princeton Medical Center for lacerations of the face. The second driver, Paul Veva, 21, 38 Chestnut Street, sustained a fractured leg.

According to police, the Davis car was heading south on 206 behind another car. They had almost stopped as

THE ALTERNATIVE TO A COURT CASE

PARKING LOT GIVEAWAY

DOLLARS & SENSE does not oppose housing for the elderly; it never has. It does oppose the Borough's giving away the very active Library parking lot in order to provide a site for housing. PCH's project can be located elsewhere, and the Borough taxpayers can be saved $1,700,000 in immediate garage building costs, and nearly two million dollars of bond interest over 20 years. These are Borough figures!

BOROUGH COUNCIL'S LEGAL MISTAKE

The Borough Council has made a grievous legal mistake. The New Jersey Statute of 1979 (40A:12-14 and 15) says that a municipality can give a 50 year lease of public property which is not needed for any public use, to such a housing corporation as PCH. It was obviously the intent of the Legislature that any property to be surrendered by lease should be in fact surplus property -- certainly not land which was actually in current public use and, as here, producing revenue as well. The Library parking lot is the best of the Borough's several municipal lots. It is of great convenience to the public, and it makes the Public Library a viable enterprise for both Township and Borough residents who live beyond walking distance.

"NOT NEEDED FOR PUBLIC USE"!

On March 25, 1980 the Borough took the crucial step of ordinancing a future leasing of the site to PCH. It has been suggested -- with no denial forthcoming -- that the ordinance was drafted by the attorney for the housing concern, a private corporation. It recites that the Borough has determined that "there is a certain parcel of real property located within the Borough's central business district not needed for public use and which would be ideally suited as a location for low income housing for the elderly and handicapped." In the enactment, it is stated that "certain real property ... in the vicinity of the Princeton Public Library ... is not at the present time needed for a public purpose other than for the site for low income housing for the elderly and handicapped." (Emphasis added)

It should be understood that the proposed PCH housing is not Low Income Housing. It is Middle Income Housing with a permissible salting of low income units of up to 10 percent of the total units of housing involved.

It was, of course obviously false to assert that land which was in actual use as a metered parking lot "is not at the present time needed for a public purpose." That land was then serving a public purpose and still is. But Council accepted the fabrication!

COUNCIL IS NOW EMBARRASSED

All our present trouble stems from this unfortunate action. It will be called by lawyers an "ultra vires" act, which is to say an action by Council beyond the powers delegated to any municipality by the New Jersey Legislature in its 1979 Statute or elsewhere, and thus is wholly illegal.

Council is no doubt embarrassed by the situation because it is being called upon to go back on its word to PCH. But now it proposes to compound the error by building a large garage at vast taxpayer expense in order to replace the parking lot site it has agreed to let PCH have.

THE ALTERNATIVES

There are two possible ways of saving the situation. The first is by voting "NO" in the forthcoming referendum, i.e. against the Parking Garage, thus killing the ordinance which authorizes the spending of $100,000 on preliminary garage planning. The other way of saving Council from its mistake is by a Taxpayers Suit against the Borough. This would mean having a Court decide that the ordinancing of March 1980 and whatever paperwork has followed, was illegal and is pronounced void and of no effect. That would extricate Council completely from its error and wipe the slate clean.

COMPARING THE TWO COURSES

Because DOLLARS & SENSE represents taxpayers, we must compare the costs involved in both solutions. When, and if, a Taxpayers Suit is brought, the Borough will have to engage high-priced special counsel to defend itself. The defense money would, of course, be tax dollars -- not the personal funds of Council members. Certainly those taxpayers who bring the suit will be put to considerable expense to finance their side of the litigation.

It will be easier, quicker and cheaper for the Borough voters to turn out on Election Day and knock out the garage proposal by voting "NO" on the Bond Ordinance Referendum.

WE URGE YOU TO VOTE "NO" AND STOP THE BOROUGH'S ILL-ADVISED PROGRAM WHICH IS CONTRARY TO THE PUBLIC INTEREST. REMEMBER THAT THE ONLY REASON FOR THE GARAGE IS TO REPLACE A PARKING LOT COUNCIL HAS ILLEGALLY ASSIGNED TO PCH'S BUILDING. YOUR VOTES CAN SAVE BOROUGH TAXPAYERS OVER THREE AND A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IN TAX INCREASES AND KEEP THE LIBRARY VIABLE.

PLEASE VOTE "NO" ON THE BOND ORDINANCE

they approached the stop light, when the light turned yellow and the Davis car attempted to turn. It was struck by the Veva car traveling in the opposite direction.

Mr. Davis told police that he did not see the car until they hit.

ONE MORE TIME?

Maybe, for Mercer Christian. The plodding Pilgrim's Progress of Mercer Christian Academy continued last week, and the road still lied ahead. The Academy will he once again hefore the Planning Board at a work session Monday, Octoher 26 at 7:30, Valley Road.

Whether persistent questions from the board or exquisite attention to detail by Academy counsel Thomas C. Jamieson have stretched the Academy on the rack these many weeks, is a debatahle question. Mr. Jamieson, at the end of last week's session, between 11 and midnight, announced that he had had enough, that his client would give the hoard no more extensions of time, and that he expected a decision hy midnight October 26.

He also told the board that Henry J. Ney, his traffic consultant, would not be ahle to return. Board member Jerome Rose protested that it was essential to have Mr. Ney available for questions by residents who have attended these hearing and whose time to speak had not yet come.

Philip Albert, attorney for the Stony Brook Civil Association and representative of many neighbors of the Academy site, said he needed more time for cross-questioning Mr. Ney.

To bring the Academy's traffic witness back, at Academy expense, for the benefit of objectors struck Mr. Jamieson as illogical. He suggested the ohjectors pay to have him return

"You mean we can't question him?" Mr Albert asked

But in the end, he did have an opportunity to direct questions to Mr. Ney.

So far, questions from the hoard and neighbors have concerned traffic. On October 26, engineering details will be discussed.

Traffic Counts. Mr. Ney told the board he had made traffic counts last December when schools were on vacation, did them again this September 24 to October 2, and found a three percent difference at the morning rush hour, and seven percent difference at the evening peak. His analyses, he said, were based on the maximum population the school expects at the Mercer Road site — 700 students and 80 faculty.

He told the board that 75 percent of the students would he transported by bus, and that there would be 18 buses; 90 students would drive and 85 students would be driven by parents.

Between 8 and 9, at the rush-hour peak, he estimated 221 cars entering the Mercer Road access to the school. A left-turn lane would be needed in the center of Mercer, he said, and the road would be widened — adding a six-foot shoulder — to allow for the lane. Such a lane would be needed, he said, even with the 300 students the Academy would have in its first phase.

Board member Sydney Taggart wondered whether the 80 faculty included food service staff and maintenance people. Constance Greiff asked whether Mr. Ney had considered the impact of school traffic on surrounding roads. Margen Penick asked whether he know 1982 and 1983 county traffic projections for Mercer and the Lawrenceville Roads. He said he did not, and to another question from her, said he did not know when the new campus was scheduled to open.

"If you don't know when the school will begin to operate," Mrs. Penick replied, "how do you know what the traffic counts will be?"

Board members and Mr. Ney had observed that the Master Plan designates land next to Mercer Christian's property for conditional-high-density residential use; and Mrs Greiff remarked that the designation was predicated on the Academy's site having a low-density use. Mr. Ney said tbe Academy's use did fall in the low-density category.

Enrolled in School?

Yours may be one of the huuscholds selected by the Bureau of the Census for the annual survey on education, to be made starting next Monday and continuing through Friday.

The Philadelphia regional office of the census has announced that interviewers will visit a sample of homes to obtain information about current enrollment in schools. Interviewers are interested in all levels - from nursery school through college Information helps the Bureau measure current trends, and helps to determine the need for additional — or expanded — facilities.

Whatever information you give, must be kept confidential, by law. The Bureau says results are used only to compile statistical totals.

CAMPAIGN UNDERWAY

For Environmentalist Candidates. Canvassers from the League of Conservation Voters will he knocking on doors in the Township and Borough, and in Lawrence Township during the next three weeks.

The canvass is part of a campaign effort first put together this spring by the New Jersey Environmental Voter's Alliance (EVA) in conjunction with the League of Conservation Voters, Friends of the Earth, and Environmental Action, all national groups. These groups ran full scale independent campaigns during the primaries in support of Gerald Stockman, a state senate candidate in the new 15th district, and for Jim Florio in the crowded primary race for governor.

Elderly Need Housing Here.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

As must be clear to most of your readers by now, the argument over the Spring Street parking garage has to do finally with whether Princeton will provide needed housing for its elderly, or not.

My concern about housing for the elderly in Princeton goes back a number of years. Initially it centered on employees of the University who, too often, were finding it impossible to continue to live here after retirement, even though their families might have lived here for several generations and even though they lacked personal links to the other refuges.

My concern for them soon brought the further recognition that there were many other Princetonians with long service to this community — as former teachers, nurses, store attendants, and local civil servants (and their widows) — who were being denied the chance to live out their lives where their hearts were.

Should central Borough real estate be allocated to the elderly in need? I say "Yes!" Not only will it be a convenience to them, putting them in easy reach of drugstores, groceries, and other services, it will also mean a sustained and significant increase of purchasing power focused into the center of the Borough. In addition, when inhabited, these 88 new units of housing for the elderly should bring into the heart of the town an around-the-clock presence that is sure to be a source of good influences.

There is also of course the fact that the Federal HUD support available to the project is tied to this specific site. That means, in effect: no parking garage, no additional housing for the elderly of Princeton for years to come.

Parenthetically let me say, too, that in my view the planned parking garage can only improve the aesthetics of the asphalt flats which currently blight that part of the Witherspoon-Spring-Tulane Streets area. Think, for example, of the former parking lots to the north of the Princeton Hospital before and after the addition of the parking garage there.

Economic arguments have been raised against the project. Others have been made in its defense. To me, it is very clear that we, the citizens of the Borough and Township of Princeton, can easily afford this undertaking for the aged if we wish to.

The question is the sort of community we want. Will it have room in it for Princeton's needy elderly or not?

ROBERT F. GOHEEN

No Viable Alternative.

The Dollars and Sense voter action group is opposed to the construction of the Tulane-Spring Street garage and the PCH building and plaza because of increased taxes and expense, but like most objectors they offer no viable alternatives. Their statement is "certainly PCH can find a less costly, more suitable site for the building." The question is — where, and at what saving?

Although I am a property-owner who signed the petition which resulted in putting the bond issue on the ballot, I am not opposed to the project and I hope that a majority of the borough voters will not be.

This matter has been studied and researched at length, many alternatives have been considered, but this proposal of caring for the elderly has emerged with the approval of study groups and Borough officials. It should be approved by the voters.

The elderly need housing near the library and retail facilities. They also deserve the concern of an affluent community for their welfare. The New Jersey Supreme Court has at least twice mandated that municipalities should provide a mix of market-rate, middle-income and least-cost housing. A multi-story housing facility is the least expensive that can be built. Library users will have the availability of the garage for parking.

The objectors claim the garage "may never show a profit." Obviously they do not know, and probably no one does. They may have raised their voices against this whole process when it was being given detailed consideration. Now, they are late-comers, after all sides have been heard, to be urging disapproval under the scare headline of increased taxes. Wherever housing is built, there will be more taxes.

Out of concern for the elderly and the conviction that wise heads have given this matter full consideration, I again urge its approval.

Praise for Fire Companies.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is a letter I have written to Chief Ralph Hulit of the Princeton Fire Companies:

The board of directors, residents and management of Princeton Community Village want to extend our heartfelt thanks to you and the many volunteer members of the Princeton Fire companies for the way you handled what could have been a disastrous fire at the Village not long ago.

The fire could have destroyed much more than it did at the Village except for the prompt and efficient manner in which you and your men worked. Everyone at the scene was impressed by the professionalism of the company. Everyone who knows anything about fires realizes the dangers to which you were all exposed. The Princeton volunteers deserve recognition as courageous and professional firefighters in a time when volunteering for anything is unique.

On behalf of the more than 700 residents of the Village, the Board of PCV and our management team, our grateful thanks.

Vote "Yes" on Garage.
To the Editor or Town Topics:

The Church in Society Committee of Nassau Presbyterian Church urges all Borough residents to vote "yes" on the garage bond referendum.

The garage is a necessity for the construction of the elderly housing project, and we believe that adequate housing for the elderly is an urgent need in Princeton.

THE GARAGE REFERENDUM

The Committee for the Heart of Princeton talks Dollars and Cents

On Efection Day. November 3, Princeton Borough voters wilt decide the late of the Princeton Borough parking garage to be located at the corner of Spring and South Tulane Streets Our citizens group believes that borough voters can make a good community investment by voting "yes" in favor of the proposed two and one-hall story garage behind Woolworth's.

Approval ot the garage is crucial to the plans of Princeton Community Housing (PCH) to build 88 apartments for the olderly, with 10 percent reserved for the handicapped, across the street lrom the proposed parking garage. Because our reasons go beyond purely fiscal considerations, it is not easy to look at tinancial implications in isolation. The issue, we believe, is bigger than dollars and cents. Nevertheless, the Committee for the Heart of Princeton believes that it does make economic sense for the borough citizen to vote "yes."

According to the borough estimate, the garage will cost about $1.7 million, a ligure that includes a sizeable contingency lor inflationary cost increases during construction. Atter subtracting the $300,000 that PCH will pay at the beginning tor leasing the land, $1 4 million will have to be raised to linance the parking venture. While no one knows precisely what the interest rate will be at the time of linancing, interest costs are likely to average between $90,000 and $100,000 per year. Interest and capital costs are fixed, and will remain so for 20 years, at which lime the bond will be paid ott

The garage itselt will yield a net increase in parking revenue compared with present parking revenues from the sites in question. The garage and the proposed housing will also raise new revenue trom commercial space, and in addition, PCH will make a payment in lieu ol taxes (PILOT). All of the PILOT will remain in the borough and need not be shared with the county or school district. Alter subtracting operating costs, these revenues add up to $80,000 for the first full year of operation, and this income will grow in future years

The PILOT will increase as rents rise with inflation, as will the commercial and parking revenue. As a result, total revenues will grow until they eventually exceed lhe combined annual principal and interest payment on the bond

Even with an extremely modest 5 percent inflation rate, the garage-housing combination will add over $200,000 per year to the total revenue of the borough by the time the bond is retired At that time, there will be 30 more years of revenue from housing, commercial and parking sources that will continue to accrue and rise over the life of the borough's 50-year lease with PCH.

To be sure, the garage will cost the taxpayers some money in ils early years. In the peak year, 1986, it would mean an increase of 1.6 percent in lhe total tax bill. The furor surrounding tax reassessment naturally causes anxiety about any increase in lhe tax burden now, however small or short-lived the increase might be. But it would be a shame if the reassessment issue distorted public thinking about garage costs, and prevented the construction of an economically viable project

No discussion of the economic advantages involved can be concluded without pointing to the economic, indeed, life-supporting benefits for the Princeton residents who will live in the housing for the elderly. Low income elderly residents who can no longer afford to maintain their houses will, for the next 50 years, be served by the project's generous federal subsidies.

We believe that we, as borough citizens, should not permit our municipality to become a town in which only the rich can afford to live in old age. By voting tor the parking garage, we will be recognizing people, not cars, as a priority concern, people who lor much of their lives have contributed to Princeton's rich heritage of diversity at all levels – social, cultural, religious, racial and economic

Rummage Sale a Success.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

It is a pleasure to announce that another Auxiliary Rummage Sale for the benefit of the Medical Center at Princeton has come to a close. It's success is made possible with the support of many people and we wish to thank the community who contributed so generously and to all those who came to buy.

A very special thank-you must be said to the volunteers who gave long hours of hard work for this worthy project. The efforts of all those who helped us in any way are greatly appreciated.

Let's Help the Elderly.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

When I moved to Princeton from the midwest in 1970, I was struck by the fact that I saw so few babies. When I asked about it, I was told that many young people have to move out of town, because Princeton housing is too expensive for them.

We are now saying the same thing about the elderly. After retirement, Princeton is often just too expensive. Many retirees have tiny pensions, and because of the impact of inflation must spend savings for day-to-day living. It is especially unfair that many of those forced out have served this town faithfully for years as public employees.

Borough residents how have an opportunity to provide attractive, affordable housing for more than a hundred elderly Princetonians, and the price is a real bargain. There are two requirements. The average taxpayer will have a temporary tax increase of $33 (in the highest year), and all of us may sometimes have to park on the south side of Spring St. instead of the north side.

The upcoming vote on the parking garage is not just another referendum. The defeat of the garage, which would probably spell doom for the apartments, would mark a shift in policy for Princeton. In the past, we have recognized the special housing needs of residents of moderate income, and have done a remarkable job of meeting those needs.

More recently, we have seen the construction of a great deal of housing of a different sort: Constitution Hill, Queenston Commons, Condominiums on Markham Road, Route 206, Mt. Lucas Road, Moore St. and other locations. It is all needed housing, and I'm glad it's available. But it's too expensive for a large percentage of residents, and it's time to redress the balance.

In the end, I guess I'm one of the many who don't want Princeton to change. I want the elderly to remain here, with their vitality and wisdon and experience. Princeton needs them.

Two Views of Inflation.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In the September 23rd issue of TOWN TOPICS, Mr. Macgill and Mr. Miller debated various facets of the financial data which have been released in conjunction with the upcoming garage referendum. In my book, Mr. Macgill won in a shutout. One of his arguments concerning the role of inflation struck me as particularly telling and I would like to amplify it a bit.

Inflation affects the proposed garage in various ways. Mr. Miller chose to stress that the garage might cost more than estimated because of inflation. While such estimates are always uncertain, in the present case, they appear to be realistically in line with other independently-made estimates. Moreover, the total cost of the garage already includes a substantial contingency for inflation so that Mr. Miller is engaging in a bit of double counting.

What Mr. Miller chose to ignore, and Mr. Macgill stressed, is that the net income from the garage (including a substantial chunk from the proposed housing for the elderly as a payment in lieu of taxes) will also grow with inflation. Net income will eventually exceed the sum of interest and principal payments on the garage bond and the garage will be turning a "profit."

In fact, with a 20 year bond, these growing payments will keep coming in for many decades after the bond has been paid off.

Viewed from this perspective, even narrow economic considerations suggest that the garage is likely to be a distinctly worthwhile long-term investment for the Borough. Recent stories of commercial interest in such a venture would clearly support this view. It would be sad if shortsightedness prevented the construction of the garage and as a result deprived us of an exciting opportunity for housing the elderly.

Home Rule Is Gone.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I write as a taxpayer and resident of Princeton Borough for 40 years in an effort to dispel some of the delusions of grandeur which seem to afflict some residents with respect to community affairs.

There seems to be a widespread belief that the Princeton Borough Council represents those who elect them. It isn't so. They don't. If they represent anyone except their own predilections they represent the bloated parasitic bureaucracy at Trenton. Home Rule is gone.

They also seem to think that Princeton is still the leading affluent community of New Jersey. It isn't. The last figures I have seen place it beyond 10th.

The majority members of the Council seem to think it possible to make up for the cumulative mistakes of the last 15 years or more in one year. It can't. It is not in the public interest to arbitrarily force residents and taxpayers to think about moving elsewhere because they can't pay extortionist taxes. Too many are without "other income" from which such a capital levy can be deducted.

The record suggests that the majority members of the Borough Council do not realize that the council is supposed to manage the affairs of the Borough. They have the final responsibility. There is no acceptable alibi for not facing it.

The foremost example of such misfeasance is the Princeton Regional Schools. They have been degenerating at an increasing rate for 15 years. They do not provide the kind of education needed today. They cost twice as much as can be justified. They make no intelligible accounting to the community.

Then there is the County Board of Freeholders. As a result of the total abdication of responsibility by Borough Council they are handsomely financed by Borough taxpayers in part and without an accounting that means anything.

I know of course about the problems that might be involved if an attempt were made to establish accountability, but total abdication is no remedy or alibi so far as the Borough Council is concerned.

The Council's action in spending $115,000 (including the Township) for an obsolete form of reassessment by an outside firm of doubtful reliability, certainly does not look like responsible management of Borough affairs.

Related to that is a question as to the powers of the Borough assessor as exercised in the reassessment travesty. His effort to dictate the application of a pipe dream as to Fair Market Value rests upon little more than trying to relate sales to assessment, when such action is comparable to an attempt to compare apples and oranges.

One of the most fundamental failures of Borough Council has been that of not confronting what should be the number one feature of a rational policy for assessment and real estate taxation. It is the fair allocation of the expenses for running the Borough over all of the parties using the services of the Borough. In particular how does this apply to the University? It is the largest user of Borough services.

It reports property and funds which it values at $959 million. It had revenues in 1980 of $180 million and while it is a large taxpayer it still pays only $25,000 a year "in lieu of taxes." As one result, 65 percent of the assessed value of the Borough is tax exempt. No public agency can be operated on such a tax base.

Rather extensive random sampling reveals entirely too many errors in the basic assessment records of the Borough. One reasonably might expect that such things would be corrected by those paid to make the reassessment but apparently many were not.

Suffice it to say that we have a decadent and obsolete mess of a kind that should not be tolerated for another 15 or 20 years.

Normal action in such a situation would be to give those responsible six months vacation twice a year. However, it should be remembered that at least two members of the present Council voted against the budget involved.

Some years ago Father Divine was well known for his philosophizing. When he was asked what was the matter with the country he was credited with a reply substantially as follows: "The question involves much more than I have time to answer today, but briefly I would suggest that the trouble with the United States is that there are too many metaphysicians in Washington who have lost the power to tangibilitate."

Sponsored by the Republican Association of Princeton, the meeting is designed to promote direct personal contact between the electorate and the Republican candidates for county-wide office in a spontaneous, unrehearsed question and answer format.

The Town Moderator will be County Executive Bill Mathesius. Featured participants are Legislative Candidates Carmen Armenti, Clifford Snedeker, Richard Woodbridge and Freeholder Candidates Gene Galli, Dominick Iorio, Christina Wilder and Surrogate Candidate Frank Metzger.

The meeting is open to the public with no admission charge. For further information, call Ellen Sonter at 924-3105.

NEIGHBORS PROTEST

Wiggins Parking Lot. Roused as only Princeton residents can be when they set out to defend their neighborhood, a dozen or so householders from the Wiggins - Vandeventer - Madison area descended on the Environmental Design Review Committee Monday night to protest a parking lot built next to 37 Wiggins.

Construction of the five-car, black-top is linked to conversion of the property into condominium units by its new owner, Gerald Silvester, who purchased the property from Arthur von Toebel. The Borough requires site plan approval for such a lot, unless it is to be used by a single-family house. Mr. Silvester apparently did not go to the Borough with his plans, but neighbors, outraged by the lot, did.

Neighbors said the new black-top had created drainage problems. They told the EDRC that paving for the lot was only 12 or 18 inches away from the lot-lines. Borough regulations specify four feet, they said.

Bryan and Jenny Weeks, 18 Madison, brought lawyer Allen Zublatt and his engineer, armed with calculations on run-off to show "substantial" off-site drainage. They also produced photographs showing that the black-top area had previously been in lawn.

"Our concern," Mrs. Weeks said, "is that there is already

3 MORE REASONS WHY WE CAN'T AFFORD NOT TO

The Republicans have controlled the Princeton Township Committee since 1977. Their record of mismanagement and careless spending has cost Princeton Township taxpayers unnecessary dollars:

LAWSUITS: $200,000
3.4% – $200,000 – of the 1981 municipal budget is allocated for defense of lawsuits brought by Princeton University and others because of Master Plan revisions and lack of coordination with the tax revaluation.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION: WASTE
The dangerous Princeton Pike – Quaker Road intersection was planned and constructed at a cost of $150,000, with an additional $30,000 required to "fix the improvement."

PLANNING: WASTE AND MISMANAGEMENT
Repeated disregard of recommendations by costly professional consultants hired with taxpayer dollars resulted in lack of consistency in Master Plan development.

CAN WE AFFORD MORE OF THE SAME?

If you've been a Princeton Township taxpayer, you've paid the price for Republican mismanagement: higher taxes.

Medvin, Bush and Lennon pledge to make things happen for the taxpayer instead of to them. Tough cost controls. Long range financial planning. And a tax revaluation review that makes sense.

Give us your support on November 3 and we'll give you government you can afford.

At Monday's hearing, 11 families expressed their opposition. All but three live in the Wiggins-Vandeventer-Madison neighborhood.

Replying to comments that, after all, the lot was now a fait accompli, Ann McGoldrick, 25 Vandeventer, told EDRC members they should review the question as though no parking lot had ever been built.

The matter will be heard again November 9. At that time, the EDRC may decide that the lot is a major question which should be referred to the Planning Board.

Mrs. Mapes worked for Gallup and Robinson, for Princeton attorneys and as secretary in the Naval ROTC office at Princeton University before joining the Red Cross staff in 1964. She has been deeply involved in most Red Cross programs, with special responsibility in the first aid and water safety programs and with Meals on Wheels. She is married to Gordon Mapes, retired librarian of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. They have two sons and a daughter and five grandchildren.

"Laurie's many talents, her warm and friendly manner and her readiness to go the extra mile will be sorely missed," said Mrs. James Roudabush, Chapter Chairman.

EXHIBIT EXTENDED

On Einstein at Historical Society. The Historical Society has extended its special Einstein exhibition until October 22. On loan from the Newark Museum, the exhibition opened in June and has been seen since then by more than 3,000 people.

"We have had more visitors to Bainbridge House this summer and fall than any time since the Bicentennial," reports Historical Society Director Nancy Clark. "Many visitors, foreign and local, have come especially to see this exhibition. People are fascinated by Einstein."

FOLLOW-UP SCHEDULED

To Arms Race Conference. The Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament will hold a follow-up meeting to its conference on the nuclear arms race two weeks ago. The meeting, "Introduction to Involvement," will be held Sunday at 3:30 at Nassau Presbyterian Church, 61 Nassau Street. The Rev. Robert Moore, the Coalition's coordinator, will lead the session.

The meeting will offer an opportunity for all who attended the arms race conference, and other interested persons, to become familiar with the work of the Coalition and to become involved.

The Coalition is participating, with the American Friends Service Committee and N.J. Sane, in a state-wide drive to gain public support for a mutual, US-USSR Nuclear Weapons Freeze. The freeze calls for both countries to halt the development, production and deployment of new nuclear weapons.

Citizens in each of New Jersey's 15 congressional districts are gathering signatures to identical petitions with the aim of collecting 5,000 signatures in each district by mid-November. Seventeen other states are also taking part in the freeze campaign.

As part of its campaign, the Coalition has run full-page ads, signed by Princeton residents from all walks of life in support of the freeze, and more than 3,600 signatures have been gathered to date in the fifth Congressional District, which is represented by Millicent Fenwick.

In late November, the petitions will be presented to congressional representatives and U.S. senators of each district in an effort to gain support of the New Jersey delegation for the freeze. Governor Brendan Byrne has endorsed the freeze and proclaimed the week of October 26 as Nuclear Freeze Week. Representative Peter Rodino is also publicly supporting the freeze.

CONFERENCE SET

On Economics of Preservation. Is your old house eligible for the State or National Register of Historic Sites? What tax advantages are there to National Register status? Who are these people with clipboards and cameras who have been prowling around Princeton?

Experts qualified to answer these questions will speak to the fifth annual Princeton Preservation Conference on the economic advantages of preserving and rehabilitating historic buildings. The conference is sponsored by the Historical Society and will take place Saturday, October 24, from 10 to 3:30 at Pierce Hall, Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street.

Advance registration is recommended; the $12.50 registration fee includes lunch. For information call the Historical Society 921-6748.

The speakers will include Susanne Hand and William Forwood from the New Jersey Office of Cultural and Environmental Services and B. William Bryant, chairman of the Middletown Township Landmarks Commission.

Princeton's Only Police Captain Retires after 30 Years Service

"When I was in college if someone had told me I would be in the police department, let alone make captain when they never had one, I would have said they were off base."

The speaker, Capt. Theodore Lewis of Lytle Street, the Borough's first and only police captain so far, must smile at that today. He has retired after 30 years of service. His official retirement is February 1, 1982, but because of accrued sick and terminal leave, his last day on the Borough force was September 30.

Only two members have ever served longer: former Chief Peter J. McCrohan, who retired in 1971 after 38 years of service and Sgt. Robert J. Anderson, who retired last year after 32 years.

"Thirty years ... that's a long time," observed Capt. Lewis, sitting at his desk on his last day. It is, in fact, half a lifetime. Lewis will be 60 next June.

Lewis, who originally was aiming for a career in physical therapy — he has a master's degree from Springfield (Mass.) College in physical rehabilitation — says he has no regrets.

"It was a worthwhile experience; I feel that it (being a police officer) has enriched my life. Things didn't always go the way I felt they should but things have a way of working out. I guess we all have that problem."

"Scrambled Eggs" at Last. Kingston-born, a 1940 graduate of Princeton High School and a resident of this area all his life, Lewis was honored recently by his fellow officers at a luncheon.

He was presented a hat with gold captain bars and a lot of gold braid — "scrambled eggs" — on the visor. "I always wanted scrambled eggs on my hat but I was never allowed to wear it," Capt. Lewis explained. Now that he's finally gotten his hat he says that he'll wear it when he goes jogging.

He was also presented with a plaque which read in part: "For recognition of a distinguished law enforcement career as a member of the Princeton Police Department who dedicated three decades of his adult life to police service and the people of Princeton."

"I thought, gee, is that me they're talking about," recalled Lewis, and he burst into a hearty laugh. It is a typical mannerism: a wry, deprecating remark, followed by a big grin and then the quick, easy laugh.

SCRAMBLED EGGS AT LAST: Capt. Theodore Lewis, who has retired after 30 years on the Borough police force, displays hat his fellow officers presented him, complete with captain bars and gold braid—scrambled eggs. In a story this page, Capt. Lewis explains it is something he has always wanted.

In and Out of Shape. On his last day, Lewis, as he often did, ran a mile and a half with Chief Michael Carnevale. Such running is part of a physical fitness program installed by Chief Carnevale in 1974 for all department members.

The "portly" Lewis was put in charge of implementing it. Lewis, who had engaged in some amateur boxing while serving three years in the U.S. Army — he saw service in Normandy, the Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe, first in the quartermaster corps and later in a tank destroyer batallion — won the Central Jersey AAU lightweight championship in Newark in 1941. As a boxer he was used to running five or six miles a day. "So I thought," he recalled, "I'd go out and run a few miles and see how it was."

"I went about 100 yards and that was as far as I could go. I couldn't believe how out of shape I was." But Lewis persevered.

The following year and every year thereafter he attained 100 percent on the yearly physical fitness test. "It's a significant achievement because he was in the exempt category (over 50) since we started," commented Chief Carnevale, "but he still took the test anyway."

"In 1979," Chief Carnevale continued, glancing at a chart, "Ted ran the mile and a half in 11:37 when he was nearly 57. Anytime you're over 50 and under 12 minutes you're in good shape.

"I'm 100 percent in better condition today than I was when I started the program in 1974," stated Lewis.

After his Army discharge, Lewis completed the four-year course in physical education at West Virginia State College in three years by attending summer school. Then, after he received his master's from Springfield, he applied to veterans' hospitals in the area for a chance to put his skills to work. It was the same story, he recounted. "Everyone wanted someone with experience."

At the time (1950) he had two daughters and a son on the way. "We had to eat so I went to work for Matthews Construction Co.," Lewis said. One of his bosses was Red Glover, the present Borough building inspector.

After he had spent a year working at Matthews and going for interviews, his brother one day suggested that he take the patrolman exam. "It was the furthest thing from my mind," he said.

But after his brother convinced him it was a good steady job and he wouldn't have to worry about not working on rainy days, Lewis took the exam, was asked to come for an interview and started walking his beat as a patrolman on February 1, 1951.

Increase in Traffic and Crime. "Things were a lot different then," he recalls. "They had three patrol cars when I came on, no detectives. There were only three traffic lights in town at University Place, Witherspoon and Washington Road. Bayard Lane had a stop sign."

The tremendous increase in traffic is one of the biggest changes he has noted. "When they built the parking lot on Witherspoon Street, they said it would never be filled with cars. Now you wonder where all the cars are coming from."

Another big change, Lewis says, has been the increase in crime. When he came on the force, he said that burglaries and break-ins were rare — "maybe one or two a year. After six or seven years they started to pick up to the point where they are today."

His rise was steady. He was assigned to the detective bureau in January, 1965, to Sergeant on January 1, 1966 and to Lieutenant in 1972. Two years later he became the department's first captain in March, 1974.

Commended for Investigation. Over the years Capt. Lewis has received numerous commendations for various cases he has worked on, Chief Carnevale reported His role in the investigation of an armed robbery at a Nassau Street liquor store in 1968 prompted Mercer County Judge Samuel D. Lennox Jr. to write to Lewis: "I wish to express my personal admiration to you and other members of your department who worked on the investigation of this case. There was no conviction. However, I can say to you without hesitation that the investigation which you conducted and the case which you presented were the finest I have experienced."

"One of the highlights of my career," agreed Lewis. "I thought it was nice of the Judge to write that letter. I was a little down after the guy got off — he was guilty as hell — but we didn't have anything concrete."

Lewis was also instrumental in the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Larry Tolve in 1975. "We worked the entire weekend on that case. No one ever heard of the suspect," Lewis recalled, "but we got a nick-name and in 32 hours we had him locked up."

"He followed it right to its conclusion," said Chief Carnevale. This time there was a conviction and the person charged with the crime is still in prison, Lewis stated.

In a letter to Chief Carnevale, the prosecutor at the trial wrote: "It is so much easier to try a case with the complete cooperation of the police involved. I'm convinced the case would have remained an unsolved murder without the excellent police work by Capt. Lewis and those officers under his command."

Capt. Lewis has also done an outstanding job for the police department in his work in the community, Chief Carnevale noted, citing his contribution to a Princeton High School mini program — a series of lectures on narcotics and alcohol abuse.

Asked to comment on what he remembered the most during his career, Lewis replied, "It's hard to say. There were so many things, but I think working with Chief Carnevale and Lt. (John) Bellow will stick with me the most. My association with them has been very rewarding. The Chief and I have worked together almost since I came on the department." Chief Carnevale will mark 26 years of service this December.

What Next? And what does the future hold in store? "Go to work and get another job. I'm too young and active to sit down," insists Lewis. And many things he has done and enjoyed over the years will certainly continue.

He'll continue his interest in boxing — strictly as a spectator — continue to fish and hunt for small game, agreed Lewis., who has four Beagles, all but one of which he has raised from a pup. A little noisy in the Lewis backyard? "Some people might say so," smiled Lewis.

He'll continue to follow the Princeton Tiger football games and lament their declining fortunes — Lewis has seen almost every home game since he's been on the force — and follow his Dallas Cowboys, who promptly lost their first game of the season on his last week at work.

And of course, continue to enjoy his family. He has three sons and three daughters, one of cach still living at home. And his five grandchildren, the fifth arriving just a few weeks ago on October 3.

"Hey," Lewis said at the end of the interview, "make that a good article. I'm going to put that in my scrapbook." "Do you have a scrap book?" kidded one of his fellow officers.

"No," smiled Lewis, "but I'm going out and buy one" — and the room filled with the quick laughter that followed. It is clear that Lewis is going to continue living life to the hilt — and enjoying it.

DIRECT DIALING SET

For Overseas Calls. A new service, enabling Princeton area residents and businesses to directly dial international telephone calls is now available from New Jersey Bell.

Called International Direct Distance Dialing (IDDD), the calling feature permits Princeton customers whose home or office phone numbers begin with 683, 921, or 924 to dial numbers in 82 foreign countries themselves, without the help of an operator. To dial a number in London, for example, callers would dial the International Access Code, 011, followed by the country code, 44; the city code, 1; and the local phone number.

A special pamphlet, detailing dialing instructions, calling codes and rates, is being mailed to affected customers with their next telephone bills. Reduced calling rates are available on calls to many countries during evening and weekends. An overall 35 percent reduction in international dial rates also has been in effect since June.

CHAMBER PLANS LUNCH

NEW MAGAZINE PLANNED

On Princeton 'Life-Style.' A new monthly publication called Princeton Magazine has been announced. Mark W. Hurwitz is the publisher, and Mistie W. Meyner the editor-in-chief of the new magazine which will publish its first issue in April.

According to Mr. Hurwitz, a six-months survey just completed indicates that "the residents of the greater Princeton area and the increasing number of visitors to our community will welcome a monthly publication which focuses on the Princeton lifestyle and living in this creative, active community."

Mr. Hurwitz points to the projections of corporate growth at the Forrestal Center which indicates that the number of employees working there is likely to quadruple by 1985. The number of hotel projects with meeting room and conference facilities also indicate a substantial increase in the number of visitors, he adds.

Mr. Hurwitz said that initial consideration was given to publishing a periodic tourists' guide, but that idea was rejected in favor of a quality magazine to meet the needs of both visitors and residents.

The editorial focus of Princeton Magazine will be on "good living" in the greater Princeton area. Design work on the new magazine is being completed by Leonard L. Ringel of Graphic Communications, and the advertising campaign has begun. Subscription information is scheduled to reach residents of the greater Princeton area in early January.

The Drunk Behind the Wheel

(UPI photo)

Drunks are behind the wheel in one out of every 50 cars on the highway. Friday and Saturday nights, that rises to one out of every ten cars.

In Princeton earlier this month, a young man in his teens died after he was hit by a car with a drunk behind the wheel.

About half of all traffic deaths are due to drunk drivers. They kill about 26,000 people every year.

What can be done?

In New Jersey, the first time you're convicted of drunken driving you get a mandatory $200 fine and a 60-day revocation of your driving license. To get your license back, you must participate in a program run by the Director of Motor Vehicles.

With each succeeding conviction, the fine and penalty get stiffer.

In Princeton a few years ago, Philip Carchman, who was Borough - Township magistrate at the time, arranged with Alcoholics Anonymous for an AA meeting in Borough Hall every Saturday morning, a place where he could send drivers he had convicted.

It was, he believed, necessary to help people and not just punish them. It seems to work.

Judge Russell W. Annich Jr., the present Borough magistrate, uses this "Princeton Alternatives" chapter of AA with enthusiasm.

As a condition of probation for a drunken driver, Judge Annich can require attendance at a certain number of meetings of this AA group.

One man, convicted of drunken driving and required by Judge Annich to go to the Alcoholics Anonymous meeting, later told the judge that the experience had changed his life.

"You required me to go, six months ago," he told the judge. "Now, I've fulfilled my obligation to the court, but I still come to the meetings – they have changed my life."

The judge wishes the Borough had more police so that enforcement of the motor vehicle laws could be tighter.

Police themselves have a device that has been devastatingly effective. It is videotape. Swagger into Borough Hall, loudly proclaiming your sobriety, after the cops have picked you up. Then take a look at yourself when the tape is played back.

Experts say the population of drinking drivers can be divided into three groups:

The Inexperienced Drinker: Young, or somebody who drinks rarely and drives without realizing how judgment and driving skills can be impaired by booze.

The Experience Drinker: Knows exactly how alcohol can impair judgment, but drives anyway. "It won't happen to me."

Alcoholics: People who can control their drinking. They are the biggest menace on the highway.

$50,000 IS GOAL

Of Sunday's CROP Walk. The 1981 CROP Walk for Hunger will step off this Sunday at 1 from Palmer Square. Walkers and joggers from area churches and secondary schools have enlisted sponsors to pledge a specific amount for each mile covered in an effort to raise funds for hunger-related projects in East Africa and in Mercer County.

The goal for this year's 10-mile walk is 500 walkers and $50,000. Funds are urgently needed to develop sources of clean water for refugee camps in Somalia in East Africa, designated by the UN as the world's worst refugee situation. A food bank for emergency relief in Mercer County and ISLES, which sponsors gardening and nutritional education in Trenton, will receive 25 percent of the money raised.

One of the area organizations taking part is the Jewish Center, whose members are in the midst of a week long Festival of Sukkot, which commemorates the autumn harvest. Many are taking time out from this normally joyous celebration to walk for those less fortunate.

Stressing a family theme, Julie and Harry Clark, and their sons, Toby and Greg, have been urging fellow members of Trinity Church to walk for CROP and have succeeded in enlisting close to 100 walkers.

Last year the Unitarian Church had 12 walkers. This year, under the leadership of Joan Bartl and Dorothy Jackson who have set out to make the congregation aware of CROP and its goals, more than 80 walkers have signed up. Still another group of interested church members will prepare a Welcome Home supper for the walkers on their return.

Members of the community not yet signed up to walk, or individuals interested in sponsoring a walker may call the CROP office at 924-6466.

SPIRIT IS TOPIC

Of Public Lecture. Betty A. Ridley, a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship from Oklahoma, will give a public lecture Friday, October 23, at 8 in the John Witherspoon School. Her topic will be "Exploring the Unlimited Dimensions of Spirit."

First Church of Christ, Scientist, is sponsoring the free event, and Charles McVicker will introduce Mrs. Ridley.

Mrs. Ridley will speak on "living in the infinite dimensions of God, Spirit," and show how to gain and maintain a spiritual point of view by using the Bible as a "chart." She has long been active in her church, and since 1973 has devoted full time to the public healing ministry of Christian Science.

WORKSHOP PLANNED

In Scripture Reading. "A Workshop on Public Scripture Reading," led by Dr. William J. Beeners, director of the speech department at the Princeton Theological Seminary, will be held on Saturday from 9:30 to 3 in Stuart Hall at the Seminary. The workshop, which is open to the public without charge, is sponsored by the Ecumenical Council.

While Dr. Beeners stresses that an understanding of the scripture passages to be read and a prayerful attitude toward them are of primary importance, he will also deal extensively with the many techniques involved in effective communication. These include being seen (posture, gesture, eye contact, being heard (common voice types and vocal problems, pitch and tone, and confronting a group (fear: prescription for control).

Further information may be obtained from Audrey M. Haitch, 466-0649, or Althea Tessier, 921-0152, executive directors of the Ecumenical Council.

HONORED BY CARRIER FOUNDATION: The Rev. E. Rugby Auer, executive director of Trinity Counseling Service, receives the Third Annual Citizens Award for Distinguished Service from George F. Wilson, M.D., medical director of the Carrier Foundation. Father Auer was honored for his many contributions to the care of the mentally ill. In 1968, in cooperation with others, he initiated the counseling service as a special resource for parish clergy and other professionals in the areas of counseling and mental health.

MEADOWBROOK, PRINCETON

Not everyone wants a four bedroom colonial on a quiet street. Or a wooded lot, or an inground pool. Not everyone wants to be tucked away from hustle and bustle and still be conveniently close to shopping and schools. However, if these things don't bother you, then please come and see this fine Princeon Township listing.

AMWELL ROAD, MILLSTONE

Rochambeau didn't sleep here, nor did Washington. However, portions of this lovely old colonial were standing then. The gentle patina that comes with age adds a charm that cannot be recreated. Updated over the years, the living is more comfortable now than it was 200 years ago. Asking

Four Candidates for Two Vacant Township Seats All Strongly Oppose Mercer Christian Academy

Two seats on Township Committee fall vacant this year and no incumbent is running for office. David Blair, the only Democrat on Committee, decided not to run for a third term. Republican Josie Hall, who is mayor, had planned to run but was forced to withdraw for reasons of health.

Republican candidates are Richard Schoch, replacing Mrs. Hall, and Gail Firestone. Democratic candidates are Lesley Bush and Alan Medvin.

The mayoralty is not at stake this year. Even if both Democrats win, the Republicans will still have a majority and will, therefore, choose the mayor.

The four candidates have one area of firm agreement: all are strongly opposed to

Lesley Bush

Mercer Christian Academy's proposal to build a campus between Mercer Road and the Lawrenceville Road, near Gallup Drive.

They cite, not only traffic and environmental questions, but the tax impact: construction of the campus would remove the property from the Township tax rolls.

The Republicans list three issues: keeping taxes down, providing essential services and overseeing reasonable land use, working with the Master Plan.

"Pocketbook Isses." The paramount issue, say the Democrats, is "the record of the party in control — and these are pocketbook issues."

"Money to fight suits brought against the Township by developers comes to three and four-tenths percent of the budget, and this $200,00 is a huge chunk," Ms. Bush says.

"As a trial lawyer, I feel litigation is the last resort: you should try to resolve the problem before. Lawyers ays Committee's attitude is 'So? Sue me!'"

Regarding these suits, Mrs. Firestonesays:

"The state required a Master Plan and the Township must ordinance according to the Plan. If you don't defend it, then you don't have a Master Plan."

Mr. Schoch adds:

"Don't forget: there has been a bi-partisan administration in the Township for many years and Democrats voted for many of these measures."

Mercer Road "Mess." The Mercer Road re-alignment, attacked by Democrats, is acknowledged by Republicans to be "a mess." Mr. Medvin charges that Committee members rejected the municipal engineer's design and designed it themselves.

"It will cost $30,000 to modify the design," Mr. Medvin says. "Poor planning, at taxpayers' expense."

Republicans say the plan approved by Committee isn't the one that was followed, and they point out that the Township engineer involved is no longer working for the municipality.

Financially, the Republicans' greatest pride is the recent AA-1 bond rating from Moody's — "one of the hardest judges in the world," Mr. Schoch smiles. "They're saying we run our shop well. It's the highest possible rating for a town this size."

Republicans have found, in campaigning, that crime is the main concern among voters. The party has a questionnaire and preliminary results show that, if cuts must be made, recreation is favored.

"Crime and public safety wasn't an issue in our minds at first," Mr. Schoch remarks, "so we're looking at it afresh."

Squad Funding. In other public service areas, Mr. Schoch and Mrs. Firestone advocate a long-range guarantee that Borough and Township both, will meet their commitments to the First Aid and Rescue Squad ... and I feel sure the Borough feels the same," Mr. Schoch added.

The candidates suggest more innovative ways of funding the Squad, perhaps through corporate giving.

Gail Firestone — Richard Schoch

Short-term, Mr. Medvin believes, the Township's biggest problem is to find a way to deliver services, faced with decreased Federal and state funding. Mr. Medvin says that because he and Ms. Bush are friends of Senator Bill Bradley and gubernatorial candidate James Florio, and because they know personally the Freeholders in the Democratic-controlled county, they have important contacts for possible funding.

Ms. Bush, a resident of Princeton Community Village, thinks it is important for Committee to show the diversity of the community.

The diversity of the Township is not reflected on the present Committee, the Democrats say. Ms. Bush, who lives in Princeton Community Village, points to her involvement with youth, as a teacher and "Y" worker, and with older residents at the Village. Her olympic gold medal, she says, is not relevant, "but it symbolizes the fact that I am a hard worker and willing to put in the time to do a first-rate job."

Mr. Medvin looks at Committee and says, "The governing body doesn't reflect the fact that the majority of Township residents work at a full-time job."

Neither Democrat looks with favor on the proposed zoning law designed to provide lower-cost homes on small lots. "An empty promise," Mr. Medvin says, "another example of the present Committee's capricious attitude toward long-range planning. Voters want solid, no-nonsense leadership willing to face problems realistically."

Housing is a concern for both Democrats, they say. Mr. Medvin ,a 1965 PHS graduate, says few of his classmates can afford Princeton. He says he is upset about the $1.74 figure given by the Township to home-owners last year so they could estimate taxes after revaluation.

"Then, officials found the accurate figure should have been $2.08 — a 20 percent increase! And in the tax office, they are still giving out that $1.74 as an estimate. People feel they were misled."

work in "The Stunt Man," playing the flamboyant, egotistical movie director — is he a madman, or is he not?

You can judge for yourself, and evaluate O'Toole's performance, when the film is shown Tuesday and Wednesday, October 27 and 28. Like other Movies-from-McCarter, this will be screened in the auditorium of the Frick chemistry building on Washington Road.

Meanwhile, you can still catch "The Tin Drum," on the McCarter film schedule for this Wednesday and Thursday at 7:15 and 9:45 each night.

In this film version of Gunter Grass' novel, you'll meet Oskar, the boy who decides at the age of three that he won't grow any more, because he doesn't like the adult world. Armed with toy tin drum and piercing scream, he stands apart and watches the follies of his elders.

In weeks to come, Movies-from-McCarter will show "Tess," "The Return of the Secauces Seven," "Melvin and Howard" and "Eyewitness," besides all the films from Poland, Australia, Sweden, Germany and France.

"In a Secret Garden" was first performed in the summer of 1980 at the Aspen Music Festival.

Ms. Abrahams was a dancer with the Paul Taylor company; and has danced with Pearl Lang, Mary Anthony, the Merry Go Rounders and Dance Quartet. She has choreographed with directors Wilford Leach, Michael Kahn and Louis Criss. Since 1975, she has been a member of the University's dance faculty.

'CITADLE WILL ROCK'

1937 Musical. Described by former New York Times critic Brooks Atkinson as "the most vivid proletarian drama ever written in this country," Marc Blitzstein's "The Cradle Will Rock" will be revived by Princeton Inn College theatre for performances the first three week-ends in November.

The musical — sometimes called "a play with music" — articulates and satirizes the Depression era. Veronica Brady is the drama director and Joan Keyes the music director, and the songs and story will be presented by a cast of over 30, consisting of Princeton University students and townspeople.

Richard Swain will be the piano accompaniment. Ann Brown and Sue Ithcaumr have designed the costumes and Eleanor Burnett has created the "Steeltown, U.S.A." set. Wolfgang Hul is in charge of lighting. The revival has been produced by Roland Roberge.

"The Cradle Will Rock" will be given in the Princeton Inn College theatre on Alexander Road at 8:30 on Friday and Saturday, November 6-7, 13-14 and 20-21. There will be a 3 p.m. matinee on Sunday, November 22. Tickets, for the general public, are $3 with a $2 student price. They are available at the door only.

INTIME TO OPEN

With One-Actors. "The Loveliest Afternoon" and "The Dumbwaiter," a pair of short plays, will open the season for Thentre Intime, the undergraduate thentre for Princeton University. Plays are presented in Murray Theatre on campus.

The evening of one-acts will play this Thursday through Sunday, with performances starting at 8:30. Reservations may be made at 452-8181.

Caroline Turner, who has participated in many Intime productions, will direct John Guare's "The Loveliest Afternoon," a romantic comedy set in a park. Tim Cavanaugh and Lucy Blackburn will play the leads.

Harold Pinter's "The Dumbwaiter" will be directed by John Simpson, a member of the University's class of 1966, who was president of Theatre Intime as an undergraduate. Jake Nunes and Tom Burka are the actors.

Tiny Tim is Popular

You can still buy tickets for the holiday performances of McCarter's "A Christmas Carol," but the student matinees were sold out by October 1. School groups are now on a waiting list.

The theatre says that over 2,000 students in 26 schools wanted to attend one of the five shows. Those who had to be turned away, are being advised to buy regular evening or matinee tickets.

Nagle Jackson's adaptation of Charles Dickens' story, will open Thanksgiving week-end — November 28 — and will play through December 13. It will then travel to the Annenburg Center in Philadelphia where it will play through Decembeber 26.

OPERA!

...And Musical Comedy. A three-production season consisting of "La Boheme," "Showboat" and "Rigoletto" has been scheduled by the Trenton Civic Opera Company. Performances will be given in Trenton's War Memorial auditorium under the direction of Byron Steele, artistic director of the company.

"La Boheme" will begin the season on Sunday, November 15, with an English-language production. Jerome Kern's "Showboat" will follow on January 31 and the season will conclude May 2 with another English-language production — "Rigoletto."

The Trenton Civic Opera is offering reduced-price subscriptions at $10, $15 and $20 for all three productions until November 1. After that date, only single-performance tickets will be sold.

DANCERS ON THE ROAD

To Give Master Classes. At the invitation of the West Virginia Dance Theatre, the 15-member professional wing of the Princeton Ballet will spend two days at the University of Charleston to present a series of master classes in jazz and ballet, lecture-demonstrations and an evening performance. The group will be in West Virginia this Friday and Saturday.

The trip is the first of several out-of-state residencies planned by the Princeton Ballet for the current senson as part of the Mid-Atlantic States Regional Touring program. The company was chosen last fall by audition to participate in the program.

The Mid-Atlantic States Arts Consortium works with arts agencies in Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvanin, West Virginia and the District of Columbia in an exchange program of arts activities.

STORIES AS DRAMA

For Young Children. "Dramatizing Literature with Elementary School Children," a workshop for adults who work with children, will be led by Creative Theatre Unlimited teachers on Saturday, October 24 from 10 to 3 in the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill and Route 206.

Participants will learn the ways they can bring stories to life. The workshop will consider narrative pantomime, sound effects, ways to highlight characters and how to improvise in small or large groups.

Teachers will be Joan Robinson, education director for CTU and a former elementary school teacher, and Pat Pinciotti, a doctoral candidate in creative arts education at Rutgers and former teacher.

The workshop fee is $25, plus $3 for lunch. Registration may be made at 924-3489.

FOR THE ELDERLY

Special "Nutcracker." Elderly residents of Princeton — in fact, of all Mercer County — and the handicapped will be guests of the merchants of the Princeton area at a free matinee of "The Nutcracker," Tschaikowsky's holiday ballet, which will be presented by the Princeton Ballet and McCarter Theatre.

This is the third year that merchants have sponsored a free matinee for the elderly and handicapped. Groups and organizations working with either senior citizens or the handicapped, are asked to call 609-896-1657 after 7 p.m., to obtain complimentary tickets for the December 17 matinee.

New York Chamber Soloists Open University Concerts Season

Princeton University Concerts opened its 1981-82 season Monday night with the New York Chamber soloists in a concert consisting of J.S. Bach's Brandenburg Concertos.

This was an unusual event for this Princeton audience, partially because these works are rarely heard in their entirety, and partially because they were admirably performed by this capable ensemble.

Bach wrote these six concertos for Christian Ludwig, the Margrave of Brandenburg, while in the service of Prince Leopold of Coethen. In general, the works were patterned after the Italian concerto grosso form, with its fast-slow-fast movement arrangement and its characteristic alternation between the full ensemble and a group of instruments called the concertino.

These instruments were treated in a soloistic fashion and served as the main source of contrast in the works. The similarities among the concertos ends there, however, as each one is highly individual in character. The orchestration varies substantially from one concerto to the next, and the relationships between the concertino group and the full ensemble change similarly.

Due to the largely soloistic nature of the works, the relative strengths and weaknesses of individuals within the ensemble became quite apparent, sometimes painfully so.

The evening's concert began with the third concerto of the set, scored for violins, violas and cellos, all in threes, supported by double bass and harpsichord.

Performers' Callbre Differs. Within this work we experienced the first evidence that some performers in this ensemble are not of the same calibre as others. The weaker players, particularly the third violinist, muddled some of the exposed and more virtuosic lines, and in general there tended to be some unevenness in the flow of 16th notes whicb form the overall texture of the piece. Everyone is a soloist in this work at some time or another, and some, unfortunately, were not up to the part.

The fifth concerto is considered by some musicians to be more of a harpsichord concerto than a concerto grosso. Bach uses the instrument as a part of the solo group, sometimes to the exclusion of everything else. The first movement contains an extended, cadenza-like passage for harpsichord alone, which was played nearly flawlessly. Throughout the work, the violin and flute maintained good, clear tone and strong rhythmic independence.

Concerto No. 1 is the most varied of the six in regard to the instruments used, with the concertino group consisting of two horns, three oboes and solo violin. The bassoon adds still another color, although it is used merely to double the cello line.

The horn parts are extraordinarily high in some instances, and gave the performers more than a little trouble. The violinist, however, was remarkably strong and well-polished. The second movement of this concerto worked particularly well: the violin and oboe engaged in some intertwining ornamentations in this movement which made the intended dissonances impeccably sharp.

Bach achieves a marked timbral contrast in the sixth concerto through the use of the rich, dark tone of violas and cellos. The solo violas in this piece must be well-matched in order for the work to be effective, and in this performance, they were not. The first viola was consistently overshadowed, both technically and tonally, by the second.

MUSIC In Princeton

Lost in Tonal Mire. The sound of the former was annoyingly weak and lacked the biting attacks and forward drive of the latter. Consequently, the performance was ill-balanced and Bach's delicately interweaving solo parts were lost in the tonal mire.

It is interesting to note from a psychological standpoint how the chemistry and the dynamics of an ensemble change with the personnel, quite apart from the more obvious timbral changes. The performers of the fourth concerto had a particular tightness of ensemble and a drive which set this work apart from the others.

This was especially noticeable in the surging hemiolas of the first movement. (A hemiola is a shifting of the metrical accent, much like a syncopation, such that the music sounds as if it is moving in twos rather than in the usual threes.) The violinist exhibited her flawless virtuosity in the middle of this movement. The flutes had good tone in general, but became brittle in the uppermost reaches of the range.

The last work of the program, the second concerto, is perhapst the best known of the six, and conforms most closely to the solo-ensemble ideal of the concerto grosso form. The concertino group was somewhat overbalanced by the other instruments.

This was particularly true of the flute, which was used instead of the usual recorder. The oboist and trumpeter had some technical problems with the score which further marred the performance.

While this performance of the New York Chamber Soloists had its shining moments, it didn't have the precision and sparkle which one has a right to expect from a professional ensemble with a nationally-known reputation. Perhaps if all the performers played with the same vitality and obvious interest of the double bassist (who, after all, has what is probably the dullest part of any), this group would prove itself to be equal in calibre to the finest in the business.

New Production of 'God's Trombones' Planned As Focus of Black History Month Celebration

Singers, dancers, actors and actresses are invited to try out for a new production of James Weldon Johnson's classic, "God's Trombones," planned for this winter.

Auditions will be held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, November 2, 3 and 5, from 7:30 to 9 in the lower auditorium of the First Baptist Church, John Street and Paul Robeson Place. The show itself will run February 6-7 at the John Witherspoon School.

The combined choirs of the First Baptist Church and a committee of residents are planning the show as the focal point of this community's celebration of Black History Month. Mrs. Maxine Mathis, who was born in Princeton and now lives in Kingston, and who was part of an earlier production of "God's Trombones" 10 years ago, is one of the originators of the project.

"God's Trombones" is a suite of seven sermons in verse composed in 1927 by James Weldon Johnson, a leading figure of the Harlem Renaissance in Black music, art and literature during the 1920's. For this production, director Dr. Cecilia Hodges Drewry plans to alternate the poems with dance numbers and choir selections. The Rev. Silas Townsend, choir director at First Baptist, will direct the music.

Profits made from the sale of tickets will he contributed to area scholarship funds. According to Mrs. Mathis, the organizers are relying heavily on area talent and hroad community support to make the program a hit and the kind of community-wide celehration of Black history and culture that its predecessor was.

For more information call Mrs. Mathis, 924-3424.

SYMPHONY TO PERFORM

A Shortened Season. After a year of inactivity, while orchestra members and management attempted to resolve funding problems, The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra has announced thnt it will perform during the 1981-82 season.

In annoucing the season, executive director John J. Hyer stressed that, although the year would be an abbreviated one, it would be considered as a period of reconstruction. "We have every intention of returning to a full season in the future," Mr. Hyer said. "Our conception of when this will happen will become much clearer once we are able to evaluate the success of the coming interim year and its effects on future funding."

The 1981-82 season will consist of 27 subscription concerts, most of which will be under the baton of music director Thomas Michalak. The concerts will be held in the state's four largest concert halls, including Trenton's War Memorial. This move away from suburban sites, such as McCarter Theatre and high school auditoriums, was necessitated by the "financially disastrous results of hringing a full symphony orchestra to auditoriums too small to cover expenses," according to a Symphony press release.

That the orchestra is able to bold the coming season is due in large part to the reinstatement of a grant for $421,000 from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts and the willingness of the musicians to agree to a shortened season and to be paid per service rather than per week.

Princeton area residents may hear the New Jersey Symphony perform on Wednesday, November 4, at 8:30 in the Trenton War Memorial. The program will include the Il Vespri Siciliani Overture by Verdi, the Schumann Piano Concerto, with Michael Block as piano soloist, and the 2nd Symphony hy Sihelius. Maestro Michalak will conduct.

Tickets are $14.50 and $13.50 and $5 for students and seniors at the door. Subscriptions will also be available at the door.

For information and advance reservations write the NJSO, 213 Washington Street, Newark 07101, or call the office at (201) 624-8203.

The Symphony will return to the War Memorial on December 11 to perform the Handel Messiah

IT'S NEW To Us

A WARMING VISIT

To the Door Center. As fuel and utility prices continue to soar, a visit to the Door Center is enlightening. Charles Heubner, owner of the Rocky Hill store located in the Village Shopper on Route 206, assures his customers that a great deal of money can be saved when doors and windows are properly installed and insulated.

"People just don't realize that they can save up to 30 percent in fuel consumption per year, and that the payback period for insulating items purchased can range from two to seven years!"

Mr. Heubner has years of experience in weatherstripping and has now expanded his growing business to become one of the largest dealers in storm doors in the area. His newest stock includes complete replacement windows, exterior steel replacement doors, and a large selection of high-security brass locks.

No More Gales. A special service of the Door Center will please anyone trying to obtain protection from the chilling gales entering under doors this winter. Mr. Heubner or one of his able staff will visit one's home, do a complete energy and security analysis of all exterior doors and windows, and render a free estimate.

DECORATIVE YET PRACTICAL. Charles Heubner, owner of the Door Center adds finishing touches to one of the many handcrafted decorative doors with a stained glass insert. Complete fuel-saving steel replacement door systems are now in stock in the Rocky Hill store.

"This is our newest service. We will look for the most vulnerable places in a home and see where we can help," says Mr. Heubner. He also notes that insulating materials can save consumers up to 70 percent in energy consumption.

The Door Center stocks a wide range of Armclad storm doors by Hess and L.M. Martin Company. Insulated steel entry systems by Stanley are weather tested, guaranteed not to warp or split, and come in a variety of attractive colors, some painted with enamel to look just like wood. These outside doors, which are offered in traditional or contemporary designs, have a strong polyurethane core, magnetic weatherstripping, are prehung, and can be easily installed by the home owner.

Decorative Inside and Out. Decorating does not have to be confined to the interior of a home. There is a huge selection of decorative interior and exterior doors at the Door Center In addition to the steel entry systems by Stanley and other companies, one could choose a handsome Spanish colonial-style door with fretwork or one with leaded stained glass done in many lovely colors. There are hand-carved doors from Mexico and the Philippines, many with thermopane glass and 20-year guarantees. Other styles of storm doors, architectural doors, and doors for the patio are conveniently displayed on a rotating carousel

"While the aesthetics are important to our customers as well, our job is to make sure that the doors are perfectly insulated with interlocking metal weatherstripping so that no heat can escape," Mr. Heubner emphasizes. These airtight doors come in standard sizes and colors, but can be ordered and tailored to any home.

Old But Not Drafty. One of the most recent items to be sold by the Door Center are the Andersen complete replacement window systems. Aluminum replacement windows by Air Master are also a popular item. Older homes no longer need be drafty when these sensible replacements are installed.

Interior decorators and designers are often seen at the Door Center. Hundreds of interesting interior doors are available, including an exclusive line of designer doors for every room in the home. Mr. Heubner also stocks decorative doors by International Wood Products and the Crescent Company.

Unfortunately, security has to be one of today's high priorities. The Door Center offers a complete line of some of the best locks made. The handmade Baldwin Mortice lock with a dead bolt is as secure as they come. Solid brass, fashioned in modern, European, and contemporary designs, it should discourage forced entries. The line of attractive door knockers, knobs, and other door fittings can be elegant as well as functional when combined with the stunning designs by Limoges porcelain which can be ordered to match the interior color scheme. Store hours are Monday through Saturday, 9 to 5:30, or appointments may be made.

GALETE HANDBAGS

Another Investment. Money saved on fuel can be put into a handsome handbag from Galete, which sells fine quality bags at discount prices. There is no need to search distant discount stores with one so close to Princeton in Mercer Mall with savings which average up to 35 percent. A stunning variety of name brand bags and imports is available at Galete. Bags which are not in stock can be ordered and discounted simply by bringing in the name and style number of the manufacturer.

"People have been paying enough for leather, which has skyrocketed in price, so we have to do something so that things won't get out of hand," says owner Shalom Levin. He and his wife, who is his partner, provide excellent service to their customers.

GALETE DISCOUNT HANDBAGS: Bargain hunters will now have to travel only as far as Mercer Mall to purchase handsome imported Italian leather and domestic handbags as shown by owner of Galete, Mr. Shalom Levin.

Handy Repairs. There are few places these days which will repair handbags and other leather goods. The Levins will not only repair their bags, but also renovate old favorites such as alligator bags, lizard, etc. Handles can be replaced; large and partly worn bags can be cut down; snaps and fastenings can be changed and secured. A large suede satchel can be cut down and made into a clutch!

"I don't think anyone can beat us in doing repairs. We believe in good service for our customers. We try to keep our prices low, but we don't sell seconds," continues Mrs. Levin, who guarantees all of their bags, with the exception of the fashionable metallics, which tend to peel. Handbags and other leather goods are guaranteed up to six months, while renovations of bags even 50 years old are priced very reasonably. The Levins think that it is just good business.

Fine Imports. All of the latest styles can be found at Galete, including the new metallics. Reptiles have taken on a fresh look in bright color combinations. Galete features snake bags in solids such as black, purple, loden green, dubonnet, taupe, wine, brown, or a mixture of these colors in strips of squares. There are handsome suede and snake combinations with gold or silver trim. One of the more interesting clutches has a reversible metallic bow for evenings out.

The large selection of clutches come in a variety of leather treatments and are priced quite reasonably. "These prices are particularly low," says Mrs. Levin. "People should not have to pay a fortune for a bag that they don't use that often."

While signed designer bags have become less popular in recent years, the Levins still stock a few such bags by Dior and Pierre Cardin. However, their biggest sellers include stunning imports from Italy which have just arrived.

Woven and textured leather bags have stirred a lot of interest in recent years. Copies of the irresistible Botega bags are so fine that it is difficult to distinguish which is which. Hand-painted Lisette bags in pouch or satchel styles are often printed in safari or honeycomb motifs. Durable pebblegrain leather is fashioned into handsome soft saddlebags or shoulder satchels.

For those planning to winter in the south, a large resort collection is always for sale at Galete. Delectable pastels reminiscent of summer days are fashioned in light-weight shoulder bags and clutches, plus resort-bound travel totes.

Travelling customers will find whatever they need at Galete even before they reach Italy! The wide variety of travel items include: camera cases with secure zip tops; totes; passport cases; the new "softie" wallets for men and women; credit card cases; plus one of the biggest sales items, the compartment bag.

This versatile handbag tote will help keep one organized at home or abroad. It is made in naked leather, two-toned skins, or in lambskin. Similar to the coach bag, it is one of the best-selling bags on the market.

The mature customer has an equally large stock of classic bags from which to choose. The classic lines are still the best according to the Galete's owners. Investing in all leather is worthwhile when one is sure that the style won't change for years to come.

For the business minded, attache cases for men and women, fully lined in leather are now on sale for as little as $60. The business woman may also be interested in the convertible pouch bag, handy for papers as well as other paraphernalia.

Store hours on Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays are from 10 to 6, Wednesdays through Fridays from 10 to 8, and on Sundays from 11:30 - 4:30.

ART

BERNINI WORKS ON VIEW

At University Art Museum. It is not clear whether the Baroque period should be considered the final phase of the Renaissance or the beginning of a new era. Labels notwithstanding, the work of this period, which encompassed the 17th and early 18th centuries throughout Europe, is distinct from the art which preceded it.

The outstanding characterlstic of anything that claims the Baroque label is a sense of restless energy and active visual drama. In Rome, the fountainhead of the style, most Baroque art was created for the church. The high theatre that dominates this art is thought to be a reflection of the pomp and extravagant drama that became a part of church ritual during the counter-reformation.

The work of Gianlorenzo Bernini embodies the essence of the Baroque. Monuments, ecclesiastical sculpture and ornamented architectural forms are characterized by the quickened rhythma and dazzling energy that marked the art of the period. The human form is rendered in a manner that creates shadow and silhouette that seems to extend beyond the physical boundaries of the subject.

Draperies and background areas become foils for vigorous movement that intensifies the dramatic qualities of the forms. Themes are religious but the manner of expression embodies a new, more intense kind of realism.

The exhibition of Bernini drawings now at the Princeton University Art Museum permit an understanding of both the artist and the nature of the Baroque. The drawings, which include work in chalk, pen and ink and wash are from the collection of the Museum der Bilenden Kunste in Leipzig. Among them are a variety of figure sketches and compositional studies for major works that are thought to be from the artist's own collection.

The display opens with a map of Rome which is marked to indicate the number of significant works that Bernini designed. The result is quite telling, for there is almost no section of the city that is without at least one and occasionally several monuments that are the work of the noted sculptor-architect. The quantity of work by Bernini affirms his role as the most important sculptor of his time.

The drawings in the collection are varied. Included are quick sketches, architectural notes, developmental studies of a single figure and more complex series which explore structure and spatial relationships. Many of the drawings are from groupings that clearly chart the development of an intricately conceived work.

Although some of these sketches lack excitement as individual works they become meaningful and develop a different form of artistic significance, because they are presented in conjunction with large fine photographs of the final works. As a result, we are able to see the relationship between the sketch and the three dimensional expression of the drawing which illustrates some of the thinking, the searching and the artistic choices that were made by the artist.

The drawings, which in some cases are constructed of a few lightly drawn lines, describe major movements, significant details and the exploration of compositional balance that determined the results. Comparison between the drawing and the photograph allows an understanding of the complex relationships and heightens the sense of the drawing's value by permitting a clear understanding of its artistic purpose.

Through this display it is possible to share Bernini's concern for the value of a shadow, his desire to develop a particular intensity of movement or, in the case of the sequential studies, to understand the thinking and the processes that were part of the development of these important works.

The exhibition, which was conceived by Irving Lavin of Princeton, the foremost living Bernini scholar, successfully shares scholarly concerns, even with the uninitiated. The manner of presentation makes clear the scope and the significance of the artist and, while doing so, also permits a concern for technique, detail and concept that often remain a mystery to the viewer.

The Bernini display is accompanied by two supplemental displays of Baroque art from the Museum's collection. French and Italian drawings, fine works of art in their own right, provide a setting for the Bernini and, in some cases a basis for comparison.

A further complement to the exhibit is a collection of drawings of the work of Bernini by Augustin Pajou, a French neoclassical sculptor who studied at the Academie de France in Rome. Again, we are given a greater sense of the scale of Bernini's work, this time as a result of wash studies, carefully resolved drawings, and book plates that capture the drama and movement as well as some subtle turnings of detail not shown in the sketches.

At Gallery 100. Paintings by Charles McVicker demonstrate a most satisfactory combination of painterly concerns and the precise form of artistic notation that is a part of the illustrator's craft. Street scenes and landscapes offer European and American vistas that are punctuated with and, occasionally dominated by, the people that inhabit the spaces.

Images are captured in an intensely realistic mode that is heightened by the use of light to develop both mood and form. Although the color is essentially naturalistic, the exciting surface created by fine brushwork and the depth of tone used for the careful modelling of form takes these works beyond the realm of the literal.

At E.R. Squibb. Photoreal paintings of athletes plying their various trades convey some of the intensity that is a part of the subject matter by the use of intense color and combinations of strongly contrasting tones. Dr. Joseph Wilder has created a series of prize fighters, auto racers, runners, wrestlers and similar types, often as large as and larger than life.

WIT AND ESSENCE: A gifted caricaturist, the Baroque artist Bernini knew how to uae a deft line to express with wit the essence of his subject. Here is his sketch of Pope Innocent XI, part of Princeton University's current exhibition, "Drawings by Gian Lorenzo Bernini."

Slides from Dr. Sweet's visit to Japan last summer will be included.

Art in Princeton

The cornerstone of the collection is an oil on canvas entitled "The Great American Horse Race." This mural sized work presents a well painted, tightly composed stampede of thoroughbreds thundering toward the viewer topped by an exploding rainbow of jockey's silks. The scale of the paintings and the interaction between so many intensely presented pieces creates a sense of drama restricted to the actual event.

PEN ARTISTS ON EXHIBIT

At Bank. The First National Bank of Princeton has an exhibit of art works by The National League of American Pen Women, Inc.

Nine of the League's members suhmitted their works including watercolors, oils and pastels, for judging in the 1981 Annual New Jersey State Art Show.

Judging of the 23 entries took place last week.

Best In Show was awarded to Dorothy Bissell for her watercolor, "Black Mesa"; Awards of Excellence in the field of oil were awarded to Bunny Neumann for her abstract, "Blue Veil," and also to Gisela Bly for her painting, "Cafe Scene." Awards of Excellence in the medium of watercolor went to Judi F. Niemann for her painting entitled, "Lambertville Train Station," and also to Mary LaForge for her painting, "Forest Floor."

The artists will be receiving their "Blue Ribbons" at a reception to he held this Wednesday at 6 in the Bank's Lobby. The public is invited.

TV SYMBOLS SUBJECT OI Exhibit, Forum.

An exhibit entitled, "TV: America's Super Symbols" in Murray-Dodge Hall on the Princeton University campus, through October 23.

The exhibit, first funded by the Rhode Island Committee for the Humanities, is sponsored by the University Chapel and has been composed by Gregor T. Goethals, associata professor of art history at the Rhode Island School of Design. Through a series of still photographs taken from television, Prof. Goethals seeks to illustrate the themes of her recent book, "The TV Ritual: Worship at the Video Altar."

This Wednesday at 7:30 in McCormick 101, Prof. Goethals, will come to Princeton to deliver a lecture, "The TV Ritual." Afterwards there will be a panel of respondents: Princeton professors Robert J. Wuthnow, a sociologist; James W. Fernandez, an anthropologist, and Professors John Wilson and Ellen Umansky of the Religion Department.

The panel will be chaired by Dean of the Chapel Frederick H. Borsch. The lecture and exhibit are free and open to the public.

A FEMALE DURER?

Women Print-Makers. "Was there a Female Durer? Rediscovering Women Printmakers, 1550-1850" is the title of a slide lecture to be given this Sunday at 4 at the Printmaking Council of New Jersey.

The talk will be given by Judith Brodsky, Princeton printmaker who is chairman of the art department, Rutgers-Newark, and a member of the advisory board of the Council. The slide lecture will be given in the Council's building, five miles west of Somerville off Route 22. Admission is $4, and attendance is limited to 49. Refreshments will be served.

Ms. Brodsky will show slides of prints executed by women from the 16th to mid-19th centuries, pointing out that women were as involved in the medium in past centuries, as they are today.

"Printmaking was often a hobby among royal ladies, such as Queen Victoria and Madame Pompadour," Ms. Brodsky says. "Some women engraved or etched and printed from drawings given them by their husbands. Others made engravings of famous paintings, which enabled a larger populace to view famous works of art."

HOW TO 'SEE' ART

Course Offered. "How to View Works of Art," a non-credit course, will be given three consecutive Wednesdays at the Rider College School for Continuing Studies, Lawrenceville.

Classes, to be held October 21, 28 and November 4, will be given by Marilyn M. Levitt, assistant professor of art. Sessions will run from 1 to 3 p.m. and the fee will be $30. Information may be obtained at 896-5033.

The course is designed to develop the ability to "see" and experience art. It will explore the basic vocabulary of painting, sculpture and architecture, and explain the approach of the artist in each medium.

CRAFTS ON VIEW

In Kingston. Full House Gallery, 32 Main Street, Kingston, will have on exhibit the works of 26 area and national craftspeople, beginning Sunday.

The show is entitled "Crafts as Fine Art" and includes pottery, fiber art, which ranges from hangings, clothing, fantasy hats to soft sculpture, metal works, including jewelry, woodcrafting, basketry and handblown glass.

The show will run through November 20. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 10 to 6. For more information, call 924-4040.

EAST, WEST

In MCCC Show. The contrasting approaches to art in Asia and in the west are the focus of two exhibits at Mercer County Community College. The exhibits will continue through October 30.

In the Triangle Gallery in the Student Center of the MCCC West Windsor campus, the exhibit features a series of prints from Japan on loan from the International Print Society. The show is based on the book, "Japanese Prints Today" by Princeton artist Margaret Johnson and art historian Dale Hilton.

In the MCCC Library Gallery, viewers may see a western approach to contemporary painting. Artists in the exhibit are Tim Heins, a representational landscape painter and Linda Pochesci, whose works are characterized by sharp-edged realism.

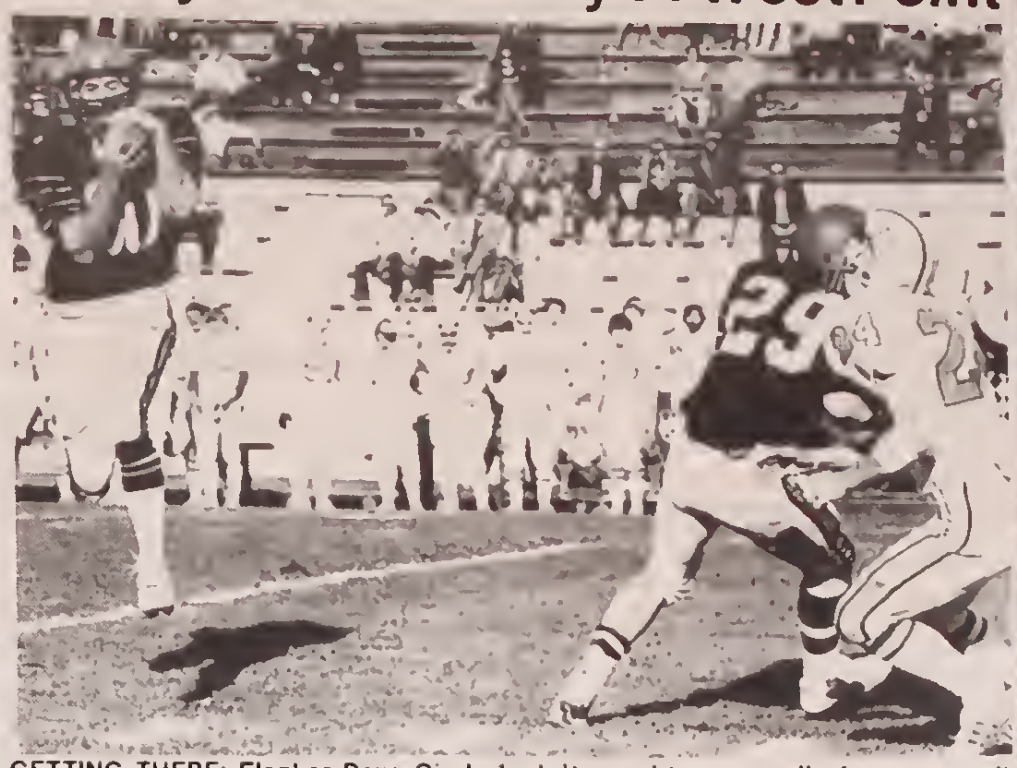
Princeton to Discover How Much It Has Improved In Game with Army This Saturday at West Point

How good is the 1981 Princeton football team, which is sporting a 2-2 record after four games. The question remains to be answered.

The Tigers lost handily to a Dartmouth team that has not won since. The 61-8 rout by Delaware the following week proved little except that Ivy teams had better watch their step out of the league.

The downhill slide was stopped against Brown, when the fired-up Orange and Black battled its way to a 20-17 victory, with a 93-yard scoring drive in the final minutes. And last Saturday against Columbia, Princeton showed it is good enough to win despite an emotional letdown.

For the second consecutive week, the Tigers needed some last minute heroics to get the job done; their final touchdown in the 21-14 triumph coming with 2:43 left. But let's not overrate Columbia as an opponent. They'll be lucky to finish 3-7 this year, and more than likely will win only once more along the way. Any team that hasn't won in Palmer Stadium since World War II ended has got to be suspect.



GETTING THERE: Flanker Dave Ginda hadn't caught a pass all afternoon until Princeton's drive for the winning touchdown in its 21-14 victory over Columbia last Saturday in Palmer Stadium. This reception was his second and aided by Mike Neary's (29) block, he gained 17 yards to the Lions' 10 yard line.

THERE: Once the Tigers reached the 10 yard line, Mike Neary took over and in three consecutive carries took the ball into the end zone. Princeton blockers opened a good-sized hole on this off tackle slant that produced the six points.

This Saturday Princeton will play Army at West Point, and the contest could provide the same answers. A victory against the Cadets on their home turf will give the Tigers a strong shot at finishing 7-3 with only a powerful Yale team as a stumbling block. That would be another step up the ladder after last year's 6-4 mark.

The Army contest is the first of three consecutive on the road for the Orange and Black, and by the time it returns to play Maine on November 7, it will have a lot of answers. With away games against Harvard and Penn also, it will also have a good idea about its chances in the Ivy race as well.

So much depends on how badly the players want to beat a non-league opponent. When Colgate held down this spot in the schedule for many years, the Tigers often had trouble being mentally prepared.

Army More Exciting? Perhaps, Army with its once proud football heritage will be seen as a more exciting foe. The Cadets have not had a winning season since 1977, but they play a schedule that includes teams like Pittsburgh, Penn State and North Carolina in different years.

This fall they have victories over two Ivy opponents, Brown and Harvard, and losses to Missouri, VMI and last Saturday were blanked by Rutgers, 17-0. A Princeton victory in Michie Stadium, where Brown and Harvard failed, would be impressive.

Rutgers shut down the Cadets' offense, limiting it to 137 yards on the ground and just 64 through the air. Army coach Ed Cavanaugh ran through three quarterbacks trying to get something going, beginning with starter Bryan Allem, then turning to ex-starter Jerryl Bennett, and even looking at plebe Nate Sassaman. None of them had the right combination, completing only eight passes in 19 attempts.

Gerald Walker, third ranked running back in the ECAC with an average of 120 yards going into the game, gained 73 yards in 18 carries. Princeton will have to work at keeping him in check, and will stand an excellent chance of winning if it can.

The defensive unti is a veteran one with seven starters returning and lettermen at every position. The linebacking corps, led by junior Dave Kessler, is particularly strong.

Army will also have an edge in the kicking game. Punter Joe Sartiano is second in the ECAC with a 41.1 average in his first four games. Field goal kicker Dave Aucoin has been Army's leading scorer the past two seasons, and holds the Army and Michie Stadium records with a 52 yarder last fall against Lehigh.

General Douglas MacArthur had yet to retake the Phillippines when Princeton and Army last met on the football field. That was in 1942, and the Cadets won that one 40-7. Princeton leads the 11-game series with six wins, against two defeats and three ties.

Other than Delaware, Army will be the most difficult opponent the Tigers have met to date. With the momentum of two victories behind them, they have the ability to win this one, but it will take a full four quarters of good football to do it.

WELCOME BACK MIKE

Neary Helps Tame Lions. Mike Neary was coach Frank Navarro's ace in the hole against Columbia last weekend. The senior tailback had not seen any action since the Dartmouth game, and consequently he was on a higher emotional pitch than his teammates.

While Bob Holly and company had climed the mountain against Brown, Neary sat on the sidelines.

What was the biggest upset in the history of college football — based on the point prediction? ... It was the Boston College-Holy Cross game of 1942 ... Boston College was the No. 1 ranked team in the nation at the time and were 28-point favorites to beat Holy Cross ... But they lost by 43 points, 55-12, making it a 71-point difference from the predicted margin to the actual margin — and making it the biggest upset in college history.

When the Tigers scored two first quarter touchdowns in textbook fashion, and looked ready to turn the game into a rout, Neary rode the bench, watching his replacement Roland Warren score the first one. He definitely had something to prove.

The first quarter was all Princeton, and it almost proved to be the Tigers' undoing. The Columbia players looked as if they had left their legs on the bus, not too surprising considering one of the two team buses ended up near Freehold, before the driver realized he had made a mistake.

The delay put the Lion players on the field late for their warm-up, and caused the game to get started 10 minutes late. Coach Bob Naso refused to use the delay as an allbi for his team's play in the first quarter, but it was obvious to all in attendance that the Lion players were not all there in the first period.

Columbia went nowhere with the opening kickoff, and Princeton needed a little more than three minutes to score. Holly looked sharp with passes to Kevin Guthrie and Scott Oostdyk and Warren supplied the running, going over from the one.

A Lion fumble later in the period set up the Tigers' second score. Linebacker Vic Ruterbusch recovered on the Columbia 31, and this time Larry Van Pelt got the call. He went over the right side twice for gains of six and eight yards, and then after an incomplete pass, ran a perfect draw play into the end zone from 17 yards out.

Columbia Starts to Move. Princeton Day graduate Chris Price made good on his second extra point, and with 47 seconds left in the first period, it seemed only the clock and Navarro's mercy for his former team would limit the score.

Instead, Columbia slowly began to turn it around. The Lions took the ensuing kickoff and marched the length of the field. They might well have had six points, but a holding penalty took away a pass completion to the Princeton two-yard line, the second time in two weeks such a call had helped the Tigers. Instead the Lions settled for three on a 47-yard field goal by Miro Lovric.

Neary entered the game at this point, and left no doubt that he was ready to play. He gained yardage in large chuncks, but each time a Princeton mistake brought the drive to a halt.

A Guthrie fumble after a pass completion stopped one, an illegal motion penalty stopped another that had reached the Columbia 39. Near the end of the half, the Lions struck for a second three-pointer by Lovric, this time from 27 yards. Princeton took just an eight point lead into the dressing room.

The third quarter was scoreless. The Tigers bottled up the Columbia attack, but could not do much better themselves. A fumble by Farris Curry, subbing for a slightly injured Van Pelt, ended an advance to the Lions' 28. Later, fourth and eight from the Lions' 23, Price missed a 40-yard field goal attempt. A poor pitchout by Holly halted another drive.

It was obvious to everyone that Columbia's sophomore quarterback Joe Witkowski would get his team back in the game, given enough chances. It took him all of the third quarter and most of the fourth, but he finally brought the Lions even at 14 all with 3.44 left.

Out of a Trance. The Light Blue went 88 yards in 13 plays, the last eight coming on a pass from Witkowski to Bill Reggio on fourth down. Witkowski then hit his tailback Jim McHale for two points to tie the score.

As beneficial as the touchdown was for the Lions, it proved to be even more so for Princeton, shocking it out of its trance. The offense came back on the field and marched down for the winning score, as if it had been doing it all afternoon.

Holly hit flanker Dave Ginda witb a 21-yard pass to the Lion 45, completed another to Guthrie on a crossing pattern for 18 more, and then came back to Ginda for 17 more to the 10 yard line. Three carries by Neary and the Tigers had pulled another one out of the fire, this time with just 1:51 remaining. It was said in these pages before the season began that the excitement was back in Princeton football, but this is getting ridiculous.

Neary's 145 yards in 27 carries was his best per-

Princeton High Preparing for Tougher Contest with Hightstown After McKellar Leads Way with Four Scores in 42-0 Rout of Hun

NUMBER 3 OF 4 COMING UP FOR 34: Fullback Larry McKellar personally dismantled Hun last week, intercepting two passes for touchdowns while here he is en route to a third TD on a 24-yard pass play. Number four was a 77-yard run as PHS won easily, 42-0.

"We planned to come out throwing," said Hun coach Bill Stout.

Princeton High's game plan drawn up by Bill Cirullo included a change in pass coverage.

The unknown factor in all the pre-game strategy, however, proved to be Larry McKellar. He made all the difference in Friday's meeting between Hun and visiting PHS.

First, the 215-pound, 6-2 defensive end, intercepted a Tim Landis pass with 4:06 left in the first period and returned it down the left sideline for a 53-yard score. Two minutes and seven seconds later, McKellar gathered in another Landis pass and returned this one down the right sideline from 43 yards out to make a shambles of Hun's game plan.

But McKellar it turned out was just warming up. To his two defensive scores he added two offensive ones, first taking a pass from Terry Phox in the second period and lugging it in for a 24-yard TD.

Then came the most electrifying play of the game. After Hun had punted to the PHS 23, McKellar on the next play carried on a slant off a sweep and just blew by the Hun defensive secondary to stake PHS to a 28-0 halftime lead.

"Juiced Everyone." "He juiced everyone on that," commented an appreciative PHS player from the sideline on McKellar's 77-yard run. "I didn't think he had that speed; he really burned some rubber."

"Larry really did a number didn't he," smiled Cirullo after the game. It ended up a 42-0 final when tailback Wayne Davis scored on a twisting 27-yard run three minutes into the third period, and Lamont Fletcher cracked over from five yards out in the final period. The last score was set up when Hun fumbled the ball away on its own 13.

"The big guy, 34 (McKellar), broke our back," said Stout after the game. "We planned to come out throwing but it's hard to throw when you're on your back. We didn't block 34 all day.

"Other than that, we just met a very superior football team, very superior to us."

PHS vs. Hightstown. Both teams face turning points in their schedules.

PHS will oppose Hightstown next, hosting the Rams Saturday morning at 11. It is the first of five consecutive Colonial Valley Conference league games for the Little Tigers, who despite their success against Hun and South Brunswick, are 0-1 in league play where it counts. PHS cannot afford another league loss.

"Hightstown has a good ball club," said Cirullo. "They have a good fullback running game and a nice passing quarterback. It's going to be a very tough contest."

Hightstown, which won only one of eight games last year, finds itself the early leader in the CVC with a 2-0 record, following its 16-6 victory last week over McCorristin. The Rams combined two big offensive plays and a strong defense for the win.

Hun vs. Blair. For Hun, the loss to PHS was its fourth in a row without a win and Stout concedes that he has been forced to temper his early optimism on the season's outlook for the team.

Up next for the Raiders is a Saturday game at 2 against visiting Blair Academy. It isn't going to be easy for Hun to turn it around against always-strong Blair. "Let me put it this way," said Stout: "Since I've been around, I've never seen a bad Blair football team."

There wasn't much Stout could point to after the PHS rout, but he did single out defensive end Brian Kelly. "He played a whale of a football game and had a couple of sacks," he said.

Stout also cited Ed Jaeger who he flip-flopped with Landis at quarterback to try to get something going. "We tried just about everything we had," said Stout.

Cirullo, in turn, saw the game as "one that will help us." We haven't been impressive the past few games offensively and I think we finally established our offensive game.

"We've been making a lot of errors that were backing us up offensively," he continued, "but I'm pleased the way things have come around. We showed a good fullback and tailback game today. McKellar put on a show. Larry's a lot more disciplined this year. When you have someone his size you want him in there."

No Accident. Cirullo added that the five PHS interceptions were no accident. We changed our defensive coverage. We locked down on their passing game because we didn't think they could run through us."

In particular, Cirullo had McKellar, who gained all-county honors as a defensive end, lay back in place of his usual ferocious rush.

So tight was the Little Tiger coverage, Hun completed only four of 22 attempts for 40 yards. Dave Barclay, who had one of the aerial thefts, now has an interception in each of Princeton's first three games. On the ground, Hun gained little better than a yard per carry — 49 in 36 rushes.

The Little Tigers rolled up 271 yards rushing, in contrast.

Princeton Football

formance ever. Only the last 10 contributed to a score, but the other 135 kept the ball in Princeton's possession a lot longer than it might have been.

Guthrie the leading receiver in the ECAC before the game, added to his totals with six receptions for 80 yards, giving him 23 catches in four games. Oostdyk, held to one reception, has 16. Overall, Holly was 11 for 19 for 127 yards. At this point last year Cris Crissy, now playing with the Washington Redskins, had 30.

PDS LOSES 14-6

To Pennington. It started out as a fine day for the Princeton Day football team last Saturday, but somewhere along the way the Panthers' offense lost its punch, and Pennington came from behind to take the contest 14-6.

The victory was the Raiders first of the season, after two losses. Princeton Day is still looking for its first win, its record now 0-2-1.

The first quarter was scoreless, but PDS got rolling early in the second Quarterback Eric Ott completed two passes to Reggie Reese, the second one carrying down to the Pennington three-yard line. Reese ran it in from there.

The two-point conversion try was stopped, but few among the PDS partisans doubted that PDS would not be able to score again. Instead, the rest of the game was all Pennington.

The visitors started around their 35-yard line after the kickoff and marched down the field, surviving one holding penalty and several key third down situations in the process. On a first and 10 from the PDS 17 quarterback John Couch hit Dietrich Thomas with a 17-yard scoring pass.

Newell Thompson broke through the line to block Pennington's try for an extra point, leaving the two teams tied at the half, 6-6. Early in the third quarter, however, Thomas scored the winning touchdown on a two-yard run, and this time the Raiders made good on a two-point conversion.

Sports in Princeton

Couch was the offensive star of the game, passing for 88 yards and rushing for another 77. PDS's offense was bogged down in the second half.

Things will not get any easier for the Panthers this week. On Friday at 3 p.m. at home they will meet Academy of New Church. ANC has whipped PDS the past two seasons, handing it its only loss a year ago, 30-6. This fall ANC has already beaten Pennington, so it could be another long afternoon for the Blue and White.

PDS STILL UNDEFEATED

In Soccer. Two have tied, but no one has beaten the Princeton Day soccer team in five games so far this season. Last week the Panthers advanced their record to 3-0-2, with a 4-1 victory over Hun and a 1-1 tie with Montgomery High School.

Don Cogsville scored a hat trick against Hun last Wednesday afternoon, and freshman Sal Fier tallied the other one. Hun managed to tie the game briefly at 1-1, before the Blue and White broke it open.

On Friday, Cogsville, assisted by Fier, scored the only goal in the 1-1 deadlock. Mont-gomery had taken a 1-0 lead on a penalty kick. Coach Tom DeVito reported that he would he without one of his fullbacks, Frank McDougald, for two to three weeks. McDougald has a leg injury.

This week PDS will play Pingry on Wednesday and Peddie Friday.

FNB IS UNDEFEATED

In Midget Foothall. After two weeks of play in the four-team Princeton Midget Foothall League, First National Bank is the lone undefeated team, following its 24-7 victory over the Lions Club last week. In a second game, Mengel McCabe routed winless Princeton Youth Sports, 36-0.

First National capitalized on a Lion fumhle on the first play of the game to score on a one-yard run by Barry Phox. There was no more scoring until late in the third period when Tim Best hroke free for a 50-yard run and then Todd Fletcher made it 18-0 with a 40-yard TD Best scored his second six-pointer with a long run in the final period.

The Lion's lone score came in the final period, when Robert Bosley's 5-yard run capped a long drive. The victors' defense was led by Ben White, Ed Kohn, John Thompson, Pepper DeTuro and Will Hughes.

Pat McKellar's four TD runs paced Mengel McCabe, the defending league champion, to its win. Louis Davilla and Darius Young added the other two scores.

The stubborn MM defense was led by Yale Carnevale, Eric Varvel, Jay Marson and Mike Socolow. Games this Saturday pit the Bank against Mengel McCabe and PYS against the Lions.

PHS BOWS TWICE, 2-0

In Soccer. "What can I say. We just ran up against two better teams," said Princeton High Soccer Coach Ed Beacham, after his team had been blanked by Notre Dame Friday and by Ewing two days earlier — both by 2-0 scores.

"We played well against Ewing," continued Beacham, "hut you don't win many when you don't score." Ewing is undefeated while Notre Dame's only loss has been to Ewing.

The Little Tigers will play Notre Dame again on Thursday at 3:45 at home, Pennington School Saturday morning at 10:30 and Hopewell Valley Monday at 3:45 and try to keep their flickering hopes alive for an invitation to participate in the first annual Mercer County Tournament.

"I look around and I see some teams not doing so well ... Lawrence, McCorristin ... and we're one of them, but who knows," said Beacham. Princeton's record is 2-5-2.

Monday's game with Princeton Day School was not played, Beacham explained, because the team is allowed to participate in only 18 regular season games and two tournaments. PDS would have pushed the number of games this season for PHS to 19.

LITTLE TIGERS WIN

In Field Hockey. The Princeton High School field hockey team increased its record to 7-2-1 Monday with a 6-0 victory over Lawrence.

Senior Karen Hendrickson scored three times for PHS, her first goals of the season, after having just been moved up from defense by coach Joyce Jones. Sophomore Alison Fraker scored a pair of goals and Sally Gorman added another for PHS.

Coach Jones also singled out right link Lisa Ruben and center half Fran Johnston for their outstanding play against Hamilton.

On Friday, PHS, which will participate in the Mercer County Tournament next weekend at Mercer County Park, was edged, 1-0, by Notre Dame as the Irish got the game's only goal from sophomore Kathy Allen.

Two days earlier, PHS blanked Ewing, 2-0. Gladys Rice scored her first goal of the season and Gorman added an insurance goal, both coming in the second half. PHS goalie Mary Allys Heeg was tested only twice by the Blue Devils.

PHS GIRLS WIN, LOSE

In Soccer. Notre Dame defeated the Princeton High girls soccer team, 4-0, Friday to tie Ewing for the lead in the Colonial Valley Conference league. Both are 4-1 in the CVC. Diane Kelly scored twice and added an assist to pace the Irish.

But it was not a lost week for coach Carol Parsons's 5-4 team. Earlier, the Little Tigers recorded a stunning upset when they handed Ewing its first loss in eight games.

Forward Laurie Lockwood scored in the first period and Stephanie Lofgren got the winning goal in the second, as PHS nipped Ewing, 2-1. The second half was scoreless.

The Blue Devils had four times as many shots as PHS, 35-9, but ran up against a tough PHS goalie in Monica Greenland, who had 16 saves.

The team will oppose Notre Dame next on Thursday and then play host to Hopewell Valley on Monday.

Tennis Team Wins, 5-0. In its only match last week, the PHS girls tennis team blanked Ewing, 5-0.

Danielle Storace, Patty Dinella and Julie Schwartz all won singles matches in straight sets, as did the two doubles teams of Lizzy Brower and Heather McVicker and Jenny Pickens and Rosemary Chowins.

HENDERSON HAS LEAD

In Soccer League. As the Princeton Soccer Association approaches mid-season, Henderson Real Estate leads the cub league with a 3-0-1 record.

Last week, Henderson's perfect record was marred when it was tied, 2-2, by STS Firestone. Seth Meisel and Dan Pope scored for Henderson, while David Schivell and Devon Davis had goals for STS Firestone. Goalie Jon Medlinsky saved the tie for STS Firestone, when he blocked a penalty shot.

High scorer in the cub league last week was Angus Guberman, who kicked in three goals for Firestone Real Estate, as it defeated Hulit's 4-0. The fourth goal was scored by Christian Batcha.

The top defensive effort of the week was by Colin Apse, goalie for Christopher Painting, who made 14 saves. David Suomi, though, was able to score once, as FMC blanked Christopher Painting, 1-0. First National Bank of Princeton and Kempner Tregoe fought to a 1-1 tie.

Player of the Week in the senior league once again was Grant Prudhomme, who booted in four goals to lead Kopp's Cycles to a 5-0 victory over New Jersey National Bank.

In other games, Commodities Corporation downed Edwards Jewelers, 3-1, and White defeated Orange, 2-1. Henderson Real Estate shut out Princeton Hardware, 1-0, while Halfback Attack slipped by Stewardson-Dougherty, 2-1.

Township Voters to Choose Clerk for First Time in 24 Years

For the first time in 24 years, Township voters will choose a municipal clerk this November. The position became vacant when Joseph R. Nini, who had been clerk since he was first elected 27 years ago and is now administrator as well, relinquished his clerk's portfolio so that he could concentrate on the administrator's functions.

Under New Jersey law, the clerkship is an elected position in townships. Whoever wins this year, must run again three years from now to keep the job. Assuming a second victory, the clerk will automatically receive tenure — after five continuous years.

Township officials interviewed several applicants last spring — including both candidates — and chose Natalie Cruickshank. She has been serving since May 4. Her challenger is Virginia (Ginger) Lennon. Mrs. Cruickshank is running on the Republican ticket and Mrs. Lennon on the Democratic ticket.

Virginia (Ginger) Lennon emphasizes her background in mathematics, her fascination with detail and her ability to deal with the public.

She is at present a licensed real estate sales person with the Peyton Agency and has five years computer programming experience with Educational Testing Service, writing, revising and documenting programs. "When you write a program," she explains, "you cannot assume that something is understood: you must be sure everything is there."

Mrs. Lennon is Democratic Committeewoman for the Township's 13th district and was an election board worker. She still is, for school board elections. "I am familiar with election procedures, with the machines, the election books and the county aspect of municipal elections."

As treasurer, in 1977, for a State Senate campaign, she also became familiar with procedures for state elections as well.

A graduate of Douglass College with a degree in mathematics, Mrs. Lennon says: "I have the kind of mind that goes into math — I've always been a detail-oriented person and this job requires fine attention to detail and a rational, logical, thorough approach.

"I think it's possible the job could be done more efficiently and economically. I believe I could streamline it, and make it work better."

She points out that in her real estate job, it is necessary to know zoning laws, what kinds of sewer and water lines a property has, what school district a house is in.

"As a kid, I was called 'Technicality Ginger,' which points up the fact that I always want every detail right. It's important for the Township to see that all the 'i's' are dotted and the 't's' crossed. I think the best person for the job should have the job, and I don't think the best person was hired."

Natalie Cruickshank cites "ten years and seven months" full time at Princeton University as senior secretary at the Forrestal Research Center, the department of civil engineering and the office of the chairman of the Humanities Council. In her "three years and eight months" with civil engineering, she managed an office staff of 10.

Before her marriage, she worked seven and one-half years in the Boston area. "Every job I had, I started as executive secretary," she says. She was secretary to the vice-president for sales of Dewey and Almy, the chemical manufacturing firm; secretary to the president of Esselen Research Corp., a chemical research firm and secretary to the director of marketing research at Lever Brothers.

She holds an associate degree in communication science from Boston University. Over a period of "six years and three months," she attended Rider College in the evenings and during the summer, while working at Princeton University, and last February received a B.S. in secretarial studies, with a minor in management. In 1977, she was elected to Alpha Sigma Lambda — the national honor society for evening students — and was twice named Andrew J. Rider Scholar.

"Every job I've had, I've enjoyed. I love people and I don't care if they're mad. I'm learning every day, on this job, and I've got people in this office eager to work with me.

"The head of the National League of Cities listed the desirable background for a municipal clerk, and I have it all — bookkeeping principles, clerical training, business education, office management, personnel and financial administration, use of business machines. I got this job through merit, and I want to keep it through merit."

The clerk is secretary to the municipal corporation, attends all meetings of the "Board of Directors" (Township Committee), records and writes the minutes and carries out committee assignments, signing documents, keeping records of the receipt of legal documents, advertising for bids, advertising ordinances.

In addition, the clerk is the recording officer for the corporation, filing contracts, insurance policies, deeds for Township property, and the like.

Dog licenses, hunting and fishing licenses, applications for alcoholic beverage licenses are all handled by the clerk, who reviews and presents to Committee those, like liquor licenses, that require Committee approval.

It is the clerk who administers the election laws, opening municipal offices at night for voter registration, working with the county election board to establish polling places and obtain supplies for election day.

Because of the volume of questions from the public, the clerk must know the election law, particularly when there are disputes at the polling place.

Over the counter or over the phone, the clerk is in constant contact with the public. The clerk is, in a sense, the focal job of the municipality. The clerk is often the one municipal official Township residents know.

Because it is not a policy-making job, the two candidates have been emphasizing their experience and skills.
